In order to profile a school, we must first realize that the school is nothing without the people that live their daily lives within its hallowed hallways. Without the individual characteristics and the bizarre idiosyncrasies of the people associated with the building, it is just that — a building. In itself, a brick building built in 1957 that resembles nothing much more than a high school, is characterless. We the people of Huntington High School, give this shell a life. A character. Every single person that is associated with the school is likened unto an atom or a molecule of a living organism. Every friend of yours, every teacher, every person that feeds us at lunch, every custodian who cleans up our messes — these people are the school. You are the school. Therefore, in order to get a general overview of Huntington High School, we must get a personal and intimate view of the students, teachers, custodians, secretaries — everyone.

Keep in mind that a yearbook is more than just a collection of pictures of people. It is a timepiece — a slice of your life, preserved on paper. In this particular yearbook, the goal of the people in charge is to Profiles. The word typifies what the HUNTINGTONIAN wants to do for the year '87-88. We want to profile the school. In doing so, we will have small interviews with the fibers of the school — the students. From these personal interviews, we will get a better idea of what the high school is all about — what makes the school tick, so to speak. We are concerned not just with the jocks, or the preppies or the nerds, but everyone.

In doing so, we hope to present to you a complete profile of a year, a year in the life of a high school student.

make it an accurate presentation of a complete school year. We expect to detail the life of Huntington High School from the first day of school, to the last. Plus, we hope to give an accurate presentation of what it was like to be in high school in the years 1987-1988. We will show the current trends in fashion, music, food, and fun. But, knowing that status quo doesn't rule over everyone, we will attempt to show all of the angles from all of the students.

Student Life . . .

Q

What the heck is Student Life?

A: Everything that has nothing to do with school.

We are talking about life after death . . . or after school, which is just about the same thing. Things like jobs, sports, parties, hangouts, parties, weekends, parties, cars, responsibilities and more parties. Yes, we just can't get enough of those parties.

You can usually find a party somewhere in Huntington. If you can't find one, it just means that you were probably not invited. On the rare occasion that there is not a party, one might cruise down to DiRaimos (in a Camaro, no doubt) to see what's what. You would probably be surprised as to the number of party decisions made at this pizzeria; where to go, whom to go with, or what time to meet. But you have to be careful, for those nice men in the blue uniforms may ask you to kindly leave the premises. (Come on, you all know what I'm talking about.)

But for some (especially the Beautiful People), life does go on after the weekends. Many of us work after school to earn a little extra cash. Some of the more popular places to work are Austins, Genovese and Haagen Daas. If you go on a day when your friend is working, you might find that they have a huge sale on all of the things that you want to buy. For example, if you want to buy an album, and you only have sixteen cents, your friend at the register might explain to you that they are having a 99 percent off sale on that particular album. So, when listening to your album that day, you might think about how nice your friends are.

Well, now that you grasp the concept of student life, I think that you know that it is you, a H.H.S. student, that makes up this great title with your what's happenings without school to boggle your mind (or what's left of it.)

Tan Faces Going Places . . .

Was it another typical summer for you? Did you go to the beach with the intentions of getting that savage tan you've always dreamed of but ended up turning beet red or maybe magenta? . . . Feeling so sore from the sun that your cheeks hurt when you smiled? . . . When you got into bed that night, did you feel as though you were using an electric blanket and that you were actually glowing in the dark? Perhaps your summer was spent doing something creative — (work) . . . taming youngsters (counselors) . . . Was your summer spent applying zinc to your nose and twirling a whistle around your fingers (lifeguard) . . . Was your time spent trying to figure out how to actually bring home a paycheck without spending everything? (college shop and the mall) . . . Was more food actually consumed by you than the customer? (Bay Club Snack Bar, Haagen Daz, Baskin Robbins, delis) . . . Was the summer spent furthering your education? (summer school) . . . Did you study the arts of water skiing, knee boarding, tubing, sailing? . . . Decided you had to get away from it all . . . Maybe it was Greece, Iceland, South America, Pittsburgh, Gettysburg, Fire Island . . . Was your biggest investment Dramamine as you and your parents embarked upon the perfect college of YOUR choice???

Whatever may have tickled your fancy, I hope your summer was as stimulating as mine was.

The first day of school. A day that all serious high school students dread deeply. When I actually think about it, it's not so much the first day that's so bad. The actual first day of school is fun. You get to see those friends that aren't good enough friends for you to have made summer plans with, and yet you're glad to see. You get to doodle for the first time on your new and clean notebooks. You have a pen. Your own pen. Like a piece of Juicy Fruit gum which you have just unwrapped and stuck in your mouth, your teachers have not lost their flavor. Of course, like the gum after a few days, your teachers will begin to remind you more and more of a sweatsock. You never have homework the first day. It's the ideal day of school, except for, of course, the last day of school.

But still, we don't look forward to the first day of school. All high school students, I suppose, are gifted with a certain amount of ESP, because they can sense how banal the other 179 days are going to be. I personally think that the first day of school should be a national holiday, and we should get school off? for it. How about raising that point at the next G.O. Meeting?

What's the first day like? Well, it depends on what kind of a person you are. Let's take the good, conscientious student first:

You get up early. Very early. Too early for human consumption. Anyway, you take a shower, little stomach full of butterflies, and do all of those other kind of bathroom things. You probably brush your teeth twice. You get dressed in something nice, probably. New sneakers — neon, glaring, advertising to all of humanity that you might as well still be teething. A new pair of acid-washed jeans, of course. You check your school supplies [15 notebooks, 12 folders and 23 packets of paper] for the fourth time, and have a hearty, wholesome breakfast with lots of mayonnaise. Anyway, you're still early, so you leave for the bus stop [the only time in your life that you look forward to the bus stop is the first day of school]. But not before your mother stops and makes a big deal about how nice you look, and wishes you well, and tries to kiss you but you kind of duck. If your grandparents are at your house, you will never make the bus. Someone will, of course, have a videocamera.

If you are the more vagrant, semi-literate [normal] high school student, you wake up late with a hangover and breath that could level North Carolina. You take a half-shower, and brush your teeth twice [ruining at least six tooth brushes]. You get dressed in what you were wearing last night unless it reeks, and put on those comfortable, blackish sneakers that used to be white like the ones that the good students are wearing. Breakfast? A cup of coffee from a deli that you stop at with your friend who is giving you a lift because you missed the bus. If you have a mother, she'll still make a big deal about the first day of school. That's what mothers are for. Of course, you have to borrow a piece of paper from a friend because you forgot to buy a notebook, and you borrow a pen from the guy who brought twelve new ones. All your teachers resemble Doctor Ruth, and that's an improvement over last year.

Well, these are the two extremes. Most likely, you are somewhere in between. Or at least you're embarrassed to admit otherwise. My advice to anyone interested in taking it is that you cut the first day of school. There's nothing really special about the second day of school, so you might adjust quicker. It somehow gives you an advantage over everyone else. Like a fourth leg.

Pep Rally . . .

Float Night . . .

Somebody once told me that the more that things change, the more they stay the same. Looking at all of the Float Nights from my high school career, I can see the wisdom and truth in this overused, hackneyed cliché. A lot has changed since my class [the seniors] have been freshman, and I'm sure that this year's freshmen will see as many changes if not more.

Yet, Float Night has stayed the same for the most part. Except for the advent of having to show your student I.D. upon arrival, and the invention of the incredibly useful Jolt Soda, one Float Night could pass for another. As usual, representatives from all four classes worked their fingers to the bones to complete their floats. As usual, of course, the seniors won. Easily.

Don't get the idea that this year's Float Night was not fun. It was fun. It was probably the most fun night [and in yours truly's case, the most self-rewarding] of the school year. Hey — it's more fun than the prom and you don't have to dress up.

For a change, the Freshmen produced an excellent float. Due in part to the trio of Mrs. Taylor, Jonathan Friedman and Kevin O'Leary, this horror theme float was as successful a freshman float had been in years. The Sophomore float, as well, was terrific. The Sophomore class advisor, Mrs. DeCaino, said that the only real problem with the Sophomore's Sci Fi float was that the trailer was "too big to fill" with flowers.

The competition between the Senior and Junior floats captured the spirit of Homecoming perfectly. Both floats were superbly done, and a splendid time was had for all. The Palmieri Brothers [Joe and Vinnie] were the guiding forces behind the two picture-perfect floats, and we can only guess that that engineering genius that these boys displayed runs in the family.

We all had fun, and we all worked hard. After all, as Jack Kerouac put it so well: "Walking on water wasn't built in a day."

Homecoming

Parade

For those of you out there in yearbook-land you missed the awesome Homecoming Parade, you missed much more than just a bunch of trucks pulling trailers covered with wood and artificial "flowers". It was more of a caravan of spirit — a procession of pride. Yours truly, being on the senior float, didn't miss much of the fun and excitement. Countless number of times did the seniors have to pass what should be dubbed the "Homecoming Flcat Test". The Juniors [arrogantly thinking victory, by the way] would yell the question to us: "Seniors, how do you feel?" And then the whole senior float would have to scream back [in perfect synch, may I add] "We feel good, oh we feel so good — unh!"

But then again, everybody felt so good, oh we felt so good. Unh!

Devils Destroy . . . 54-4

Devils vs. Smithtown West

The crowd knew they had another great football game ahead of them, as the Devils, in their white jerseys jogged out from the locker room in a tight block. It had all the elements for the perfect High School Homecoming Game. The bright sun mixed with a cool breeze would be comfortable for both the players and the fans.

Once the Band was done with the Star Spangled Banner, the crowd was settled and the game was under way. The fans were in for the treat of watching co-captains Darren Ward, Derek McCord and Sean Josey orchestrate a destruction of the Smithtown West Knights. It seemed every two seconds the audience would rise from the edge of their seats to cheer as Huntington's offense made a mockery of the Knight's defense. The mean Huntington defense line would not give easily either. By half time, the scoreboard demonstrated the Devil Dominance of the game. The second half also was a time to give non-starting players a chance to shine. Players like Vance Ratcliff and John Paci insured the crowd of a superb future for the Huntington Blue Devil Varsity Football Squad.

As the crowd departed under the scoreboard which now read Huntington Blue Devils 54, Smithtown West Knights 4 they remembered Head Coach Lucey's last Homecoming Game before his retirement. They remembered watching Darren Ward rush for 200 yards in the first half! Or Derek McCord with his bullet arm passing with the speed and accuracy of a professional. The game was the icing on the cake for a Homecoming Weekend that will go down in history as Huntington's best!

At halftime, with Huntington enjoying a substantial lead, the Highsteppers and the Blue Devil Band presented us with their first place field show. This was followed by the traditional halftime announcements. To no one's surprise, the Seniors walked away winning both the hallway and the float contest. In addition, from the Homecoming King and Queen nominees, Tom Rubino and Jennifer Shea were crowned as this year's winners.

A
In
The Action

Victory Celebration . . .

L ights flashed, but there were no fire engines. The ground thundered, but there was no storm. It was the Huntington High Homecoming Dance. A bit bleary-eyed from the previous night's (and morning's) floatbuilding activities, I made my way past a forest of dangling balloon strings into the gymnasium. Standing in the gym, I was blown away by the blaring music, with each note reverberating in my head. Almost injured by the noise, I found myself a chair where I could sit down and collect my thoughts for a moment. My head was throbbing and my eyelids felt like lead weights, yet I wanted to enjoy myself. I decided to clear my mind with a drink of cold water and a breath of fresh air. Coming back into the gym, I felt ready for action. First of all I swung by the concession area and got my hands on a slice of hero and an ice cold soda, freezing my forearm in the process. Revitalized with some energy to go on, my date and I hit the dance floor, and began to dance to the rhythm. I noticed that most of the people who had made this a record-selling dance were chatting with friends either at the tables, or in clusters on the skirts of the dance floor. Not really concentrating on my footwork, I took a moment to appreciate the decorations, most notably the floating arch of blue and white balloons above me. With each new song, a few more people filtered onto the dance floor, and soon enough there were a lot of people dancing. By that time, I was ready for a break and took leisure to getting another soda after catching my breath. For a little while, I wandered about conversing and socializing, but before I knew it I was back to dancing. Some songs later, the music stopped and Tom and Jen, our Homecoming King and Queen, made their way to the center for the traditional dance. The music resumed and as they danced, others joined them with their dates. Luckily, I was fortunate to have someone to get close to. Soon enough everyone was back to dancing and the night continued the same way until it was time to leave. As I left, I was glad that I had snapped myself out of the daze I had originally in and made the final event of Homecoming Weekend 1987 a mental reality.

Unmasked . . .

Walking through the halls at good old H.H.S., one might have been quite shocked at what they saw. Was that Brent Lassen dressed as a female call girl, Andrea Montalbano as an oriental girl, and Cyndi Rupolo as a cat?

"Watch out for that egg!" Oh, that poor kid, it hit him right on his forehead. Anyway, as you have probably guessed, Halloween is here again. The spirit here at Huntington High is incredible. Many of the students as well as faculty decided to dress up. And why not? With an award given to the best costume, it was worth a try.

"Who is that kid over there with that huge hat on his head and the face painted on his stomach?"

"Oh, that is Michael Sirotkin dressed as a 6 foot midget. Isn't his costume great?"

Anyway, it is that time of year again when you have to walk through the halls with great caution. You will never know when you will get hit by a flying egg or shaving cream that spurts at least 20 feet. It is really freaky to see so many people walking around with blue, pink and green hair. It reminds me of "Abbott and Costello Go To Mars," when they land in New Orleans during Mardi Gras!

This year, Halloween finally falls on a weekend. The only parties that were heard of was an all-senior party given by Rachel Goldstein. That night you could not get within a mile of her house. It was like a war zone. Under-classmen everywhere were going crazy. People were running every which way to avoid getting hit with some gross object only to run into something else.

Halloween '87 came and went. As we get older we get a little wiser, but we as Huntingtonians still know how to have a great time. (By the way, the winner of the costume contest was . . . are you ready for this? . . . Michael Sirotkin, as the six foot midget.)

Price and Joy . . .

The 1987 marching band season began in a rut. It seemed as though everything was going wrong. The 95° weather at band camp plus a few rainy days added to the bad situation of working with a new drill instructor. The minute we saw the "hot shot drill instructor from Texas" on the field, we knew we were in trouble. The freshmen even began wondering if he knew what he was doing. That's when the staff began to take action. The staff comprised of, Miss Shoemaker, Mr. Giordano, Heather and George, knew that we had the people to make a successful band, and they had searched all possibilities. They came up with one answer, Eugene F. Bennett. It took much begging and pleading, and luckily he was willing to sacrifice his vacation time to work with us. Without him we would have been lost. He is one of the most caring and talented people involved in the music marching band program.

Band Camp was over, and the band was in deep trouble. Our ever faithful Mr. Bennett "drill designer extraordinaire" came through for us and finished designing our drill, the same drill that led to the unexpected success of this marching band season. We had our drill prepared, and much work ahead of us. We were all prepared to work, then, the weather gave in. For many weekends in a row it rained terribly and the drill laid unfinished.

For the first time the band hosted a Festival of Bands sponsored by the Band Parents Organization. The festival opens the marching band season. The success of the festival started off the marching season with flying colors. Many months prior, the color guard and the drum majors had ordered new uniforms, so they waited . . .

At the first competition our competitor

Bay Shore beat us, yet it wasn't long before we caught them and from then on we held our spot in first place. Since the first win of the year, the band continued to move upward in score. They wouldn't stop working. It had all paid off. They captured first place at the L.I. Championships in Mineola, with the color guard and drum majors displaying their flashy new uniforms. The Huntington "Blue Devil" Band is known for their marching techniques, their talented brass section and flamboyant color guard.

Next year the band will represent Huntington at the Tournament of Roses Parade, in Pasadena, California. Huntington's Band is full of pride, talent, and motivation.

TRANSPORTATION

Do you remember getting up early to catch the bus? If you were lucky, you had an older brother or sister to give you a ride. But when they went off to college, you went back onto the bus. Remember your first parking sticker? Or when your 'rents bought you that moped? Maybe they gave you some new hiking shoes, or even a bike! It didn't matter how you got here, as long as you beat the bell to homeroom . . .

'87 Classics . . .

Another year has gone by at Huntington High and the look of the students again reflects our times and society. Each year new trends can be seen. 1987 has seen some new changes in fashion and some revival of the old trends. This year black seems to be a popular color. Most students wear black because of its diversity; it will go with just about everything! Long hair has come back by popular demand, however, the hair styles of today are different from that of the 1970's. Instead of hair being flat and straight, it is more full bodied.

Plaid, a revival of the 1950's, is now used with short full skirts, similar to field hockey attire. The mini skirt has certainly made a comeback as seen in straight short skirts and all sorts of puffy full skirts. Of course an outfit cannot be complete without shoes. Pointed shoes, long boots, and laced up boots seem to be big these days. Also, penny loafers (a shoe that just won't go out of style) are back again this year. As far as jackets go, many students seem to own leather jackets and stone-washed jean jackets.

As for what the guys are wearing, it is hard to pinpoint the specific trends. Jeans will never go out of style it seems. This year, stone-washed and acid-washed jeans have hit the scene, and what a great look it is! College sweatshirts are popular as well. People seem to like advertising a siblings school, or the school of their dreams.

Timberland boots, for the more rugged look, are owned by a lot of guys. A revival of the tie-dyed shirts has also been seen. The look was popular with the peace movement of the 60's and 70's, and can be seen again in the halls of Huntington High.

Sometimes people will go in their own direction when it comes to fashion. They tend to stay away from the more trendy looks and appear to be more unique. As Laura Devito said, "I like to be different; I want to wear clothes that nobody else has!" So this section is dedicated to all of Huntington's students who have the look of 1987, whether it be trendy or just their own unique style!

It was the best of times, it was the worst of times . . . Do you remember reading that as a lowly sophomore? So long ago. Well, here I am writing this essay on the Class of 1988 and quite frankly I feel honored being chosen to do this assignment. That's because I believe that our class has and will be the most talented, creative, intelligent, diverse, and determined class to ever walk through the doors of Huntington High. No, I'm dead serious.

I will attempt to offer some of the highlights of being a student in the Class of 1988. Keep in mind that this is a biased view, because each person has a different concept and idea of what has happened the past four years.

Homecoming has always been a cherished event, because it is our most industrious workers and their helpers that come forth and wallpaper the wall with awards for our class. Winning the float and hallway contest for two years in a row was just a matter of fact for us. Playfest has always held its spot for our class when we seem to receive a good portion of the awards, not to mention the best play as juniors last year. Our fair share of outstanding athletes are accredited with putting a lot of those banners up on the gym walls, bringing home numerous league, conference, and county championships. I tip my hat to all our National Merit Scholars and the recognition they bring our school. Many acknowledged musicians from our class have given our band, choir, and orchestra a fine sound. Student Government leaders have given our school more than we really know. The list just goes on and on. Despite the fact that I want to avoid mentioning names, I couldn't talk about the Class of 1988 without mentioning our class advisor, Mrs. Weinstock. Taking charge of our class from our junior year on, she has added an extra spark to the spirit of our class, and we thank her dearly for all her extra hours on our behalf.

As much as I'm looking forward to my post-high school studies, there are things I'll never forget about attending Huntington High. There were those mornings when I can remember my mom literally tearing me from my bed, forcing me to go to school. There were also times when I'd really look forward to going to school, because of an after school activity, of course. I could count the number of times I actually heard the morning announcements on one hand. Still, my favorite phrase spoken by a teacher is, "We're going to see a movie . . ." How about those fire drills in the dead of winter? Who, at first, wasn't actually frightened of the cafeteria food? Ah yes, the privilege of a senior — lunch out. If I can't get to sleep at night now, I just think of the first week of school each year and that usually does the trick.

More importantly, it's the friends and acquaintances I've had that have made high school the experience that it is. All in all the positives outweigh the negatives and I am pleased that I've spent four years here at HHS. I hope that your memories of HHS will stay with you. Good-bye and good luck.

Toby Holbreich is one of the most fascinating students at Huntington High School who has avoided the spotlight for 4 years but truly deserves recognition for her achievements and loyalty to the idea of school spirit. A seasoned world traveler and extremely intelligent individual Toby has more to her than meets the eye.

For the past two summers Toby has participated in a tour orchestra that has taken her as far as South America. She has been to Japan and experienced the sights, sounds, tastes, smells, and ideas of many cultures. She feels that her travels have "enriched her life by seeing new things and meeting new people." Toby is truly privileged to have, in actuality, made friends all over the world. Through travel she feels that she has "grown into a stronger more responsible person, able to think for herself." But this independence has not removed her from the most important thing to her, her family. She feels that her father has had the most influence over her life because she has always seen him as her role model. The single word that Toby used to describe herself is evident in her life, conscientious. She is always aware of setting her goal, working at it, and achieving it. One thing about Toby that is flattering to her own personality is the ability to do a task, do it well, and then be satisfied at that, totally unconcerned with being thanked or recognized for it. Few people in the high school really know Toby and how involved she is in all aspects of our school. Besides being devoted to the orchestra and tour orchestra she is in Varsity club, on the girl's Varsity Tennis team, girl's Lacrosse, Captain of Mathletes, Vice President of the Orchestra, and secretary of the Honor Society. She manages all of this yet is also one of the most genuinely brilliant people in the senior class.

Her future is bright and if it is a continuation of her past performances, she will no doubt succeed at anything she attempts. Her ultimate goal is to study law, become a judge, and have a family. Most likely she and her family will remain in Huntington seeing as her family for three generations have lived in this town.

Motivation. Drive. If anything could be said about Brian Dooreck it would be that he gets involved and commits himself completely. He has spent his High School years getting involved with numerous service projects. The latest being the Guide Dog Project, which he is a chairman. He spends much of his time writing letters to businesses, doctors, offices, faculty, etc., in order to get funds for sponsoring two guide dogs for the blind.

Brian doesn't feel there is one specific thing that he has done that's been most significant. "Everything I get involved with is significant in its own way." Among his causes have been helping Soviet Jews, working for Human Rights, and the Amerasian Project. Bring Le Van Minh to America was very important to him, as it was to everyone involved. One of the most special moments in his life was greeting Le at the airport. Though a lot of people felt that way, it was extra special to Brian who spent his weekends collecting signatures at the mall, writing letters, and had seen it through to the end.

Besides the above projects, Brian has also been actively involved in G.O., helping with the Blood Drive, and Muscular Dystrophy Drive.

This summer, a trip to Israel and Poland was an experience that really influenced. Seeing the Nazi Death Camps was very moving — something like that should never happen again.

Brian's greatest assets are his drive to see something through the end, and his sensitivity and compassion for people. In his work with various causes, he has come to the conclusion that health is something that too many people take for granted. This is something very important to him, as is peace of mind. One of the people in his life who has helped make him the way he is today is his mother, a motivational speaker who has given him a lot of insight and positive influence.

Brian plans to go to college and on to chiropractic school. And, Brian definitely plans to continue doing community service in college; helping others is something he enjoys doing. With what free time he does have, he enjoys being with friends and talking to friends who live far away. Most of his time though, is spent working on basically one project at a time. He doesn't want to commit himself to too many things. "It's not fair to the others involved if you don't give all of yourself."

On a final note, he hopes that in the future, people will be more willing to give a little of themselves to those who are less fortunate.

For two years Beth Burroughs has been both Stage Manager for the Drama Club and Technical Director to Playfest. Though her name might not be heard as often as it should on the morning announcements, or printed in the Dispatch: she stays happy with a warm feeling of approval and confidence. Beth spends much of her time fixing and rearranging lighting and sets for all drama productions. She and Lisa Giani create the Stage Crew in well run productions every time.

Beth also enjoys cooking and reading. After college she plans on working as a Junior High School Math teacher. Her involvement in band, chorus, Honor Society and Yearbook have trimmed her into a well-rounded candidate for any field.

Lisa Giani stays long hours working on the Stage Crew. She feels that if it wasn't for her, the sets for plays and productions just wouldn't be as terrific. (Modesty?) Along with school productions, outside companies make use of the stage. Lisa is one of those few dedicated "Crew Persons" to work and Help out. The Stage Crew's motto is, "God created light and scenery first, then actors."

During the warmer seasons she's out with the Band. "It's work, but it's fun!" In the summer she works with a Land Surveyor. On weekends she relishes sleeping late. But now, it's an impossible dream. "There are just too many things to be done."

For the future, Lisa wants to go to Cobleskill and receive her Associates in Horticulture. From there she will go another three years to Environmental Science and Forestry in Syracuse to receive a diploma for Landscape Architecture. "I've always loved working in the garden and designing habitable and peaceful environments for people and animals." If she's lucky, she might even own her own business later on.

The biggest influence in her life is her father and mother. Her father taught her to be a perfectionist and her mother taught her what kindness really is.

Lisa has lived in Huntington for twelve years. In her lifetime she's vowed that she will someday tour the world. "I want to see everything."

Lisa is very positive about her future. She knows there will be rough times, but she'll get over them. With hard work, determination and a good outlook, she'll be very successful.

The word she uses to describe herself is "unique".

Talk about Senior Superman! Joe Palmieri has earned the title of valedictorian of Huntington High School's class of 1988. Not only is Joe one of the most brilliant in Huntington's history, for colleges (as well as girls) he is quite a catch.

Joey P., as his friends call him, has been playing the trumpet since third grade, in Little Plains Elementary School. In the beginning of 1980 he moved to Huntington to attend Washington Elementary, then Finley, then good old Huntington High. He has been playing in both the wind and jazz ensembles since ninth grade. He has been the first trumpet for marching band and orchestra.

Not only has his ear for music helped him but so has his physical ability. He has been on the wrestling team for five years now and the, newly formed, Boy's Varsity Volleyball Team. Intramural floor hockey also takes up much of his winter time, when he is not wrestling. With Joe's activities in music and sports, one tends to wonder how he could find time for schoolwork, but wait there's more . . .

Surprisingly, Joe's proudest moment was not when he was named valedictorian of a class of over 400 students. His proudest moment was winning the Homecoming Float Competition for two years in a row. His craftsmanship and leadership led class of '88 to produce two first class floats. Joe can also make a modern analogy to the float. In the career he chooses to follow, engineering, he will most definitely be confronted with task such as the float. Being chairman of the committee will probably some day help him out again.

Joe credits much of his success to his father. His father was very successful academically and socially as well as today. He influenced him to work as hard as you possibly can to achieve your goals. This way when your done you can look back and be proud of what you have done, regardless of whether you have failed or succeeded. It would be safe to say that, in his past four years at Huntington, Joe has definitely succeeded.

JEN BOYD:

Jen Boyd spends much of her spare time helping handicapped people, doing community work, and even writing to Congress. Why does she donate her time to such causes? Her response: "To see people doing well." This is obvious when you consider that Jen has been the chairperson for the Blood Drive for the past few years, helped in many school projects, chaired the guide dog club and Homecoming Dance. In addition to these activities, Jen likes to get away on her bicycle, make pottery and jewelry to give to elders.

When asked to describe herself on one word, Jen could only answer "... oof!! ... uh ... hmm ... huh ... one word? ... hmm ... interesting?" Yes, Jen Boyd is as interesting as she thinks.

You might say: "Yeah, Jen is pretty cool, how does she do it?" Well, again we have found all the ingredients to the recipe. Jen tries to be eternally optimistic [which she learned from her father], and tries to always understand the people that she is dealing with. Yes, Jen Boyd is a cult hero of our high school and community.

In the future, Jen wants to work with handicapped people. She's not concerned with materialistic gains — she wants everybody to "be happy". Not exactly qualities that can be found in everybody, eh?

TARA SCALIA:

On first glance, one might think that Tara Scalia is just another HHS student. But, there is something different about this beautiful girl. She has goals and ambitions that she works hard to achieve. Last year when she saw a picture of Le Van Minh, she was taken in by it. Her hopes were to do something about this crippled Amerasian boy. And she did! She worked hard all year: petitioning, fighting, and cutting all the red tape in our government. Everything paid off when she got to see Minh step off that plane in Kennedy airport. Tara said that Audre Tiernan really inspired her to get involved with Minh. Audre was a photographer for Newsday, who met Minh on a trip to Viet Nam.

Tara was not only very busy with the Le Van Minh project, but was very active in other school activities. She is the co-captain of the Girl's Swim team, treasurer of Student Government, statistician for the basketball team varsity club member, and in Key Club. After all this, Tara finds time for things that are important to her — her friends, loved ones, and sleep! She recalled one embarrassing moment in her life; she was four years old, and she fell in her ballet recital.

Super Senior Athletes

Huntington High has seen some great athletes come and go. This year we must say good bye to two more Super Athletes. Derek McCord and Darren Ward, both good friends, have dominated the football fields and the basketball courts together for the last few years at Huntington. In the Spring, Derek heads for the baseball field while Darren runs for the track team. Both of them have received very high honors in their sports. Derek and Darren were "All Long Island" this year for football and both made the Suburban Team, voted by Daily News. Last year in basketball they both made All League and Derek made All Conference. And in baseball, Derek made All League. Darren seemed to take special pride in his Hansen Award, which made him the best football player in Suffolk County. He considers it one of his most proudest moments. Especially because Darren has only been playing football for Huntington for two years! Coach Lucey and other coaches encourage him to play for the team.

Darren seems to consider his mom a big influence on his goal to be successful in life. Darren has hopes to go to a school where he can play football and to graduate with a Masters Degree. His biggest goal is to play pro-football. But if it doesn't go through, he simply wants to be a business man. Right now the most important things in life to Darren are his friends, family, sports and himself.

Derek and Darren are often seen together because of all the time they dedicate to sports.

They both enjoy going to High School parties and just hanging out with teammates on weekends. But Derek also likes to spend some time with his pet snake "Bertha", a Boa Constrictor.

Both of them admit that with all their time with sports there is little time to get involved with other school activities. Derek is in the Key Club, and has made the Honor Roll; this was a very happy moment for him. Almost anyone could see that both Derek and Darren have strengths in athletic ways. But Darren has a weakness, which is that he just doesn't do as well in school as he wants. And Darren has found this as a weakness also, but another weakness of Darren's is girls!

When asked how they could describe themselves in one word, things like "extraordinary", "different" and "unique" came up for both athletes.

ELAN COLE:

Bachelor number one is a closet crisco addict, who enjoys writing, sleeping late and staying up to the wee hours of night. He is an artist who began his budding career with his trusty set of crayolas at age ten, and since then has gone on to bigger and better things, like winning an art show — one of the proudest moments in this young man's plaid life. Bachelor number one's happiest moment came when he received his first quarter senior report card, and realized that it was the last time that he really had to work in high school. The drums too play a large part in Elan's life. He began his musical career at the age of ten, and has been increasingly successful. The past summer, Elan spent at Carnegie Mellon University, concentrating on his artistic and drumming talents. At the culmination of the program, he played live in front of an audience, in what turned out to be the most hep jam since the Monterey Pop festival. With Noel Honig on back-up vocals, and other friends playing and singing, Elan's drumming literally made the ceiling of the dorm fall apart — all in the name of good old rock and roll. One of the most amazing moments of Elan's life happened in a percussion room, and this will live forever in the memories of those present.

With his trusty drumsticks by his side, Elan beats down all doors. His goals are to be an art director, or perhaps successful in music, but there's always the goal of becoming an editor. Yet, despite this Lothario's confusion about the future, he knows that someday, someone will come up to him and say: "Hey babe, what's your sign."

ELISSA GREEN:

Elissa Green is a remarkable person. Possibly the most busy person to ever go to High School, Elissa still finds time to be alone, or to have fun with her friends. Besides the trauma of going to school, and taking AP classes, Elissa manages to find time to be the associate editor of Etcetera, on the newspaper staff, and commute to Juillard regularly to play the flute. A typical weekend day for Elissa is getting up at 5:30 to make an 8:30 orchestra class at Juillard. Between 11 and 12, she plays in a wind quintet, or sings in a pre-college choir. At twelve, she has more orchestra practice, for two hours, and takes a flute master class. Then she has an hour off for lunch. 3 to 4 o'clock she has a private lesson, 4 to 5 she has a theory class, and from 5 to 6 she is singing. If she has a concert, she rehearses for another two hours. On Sundays she just "hangs out", and tries to catch her breath.

You might ask: how did a seemingly regular gal like Elissa get so serious and good at flute playing? Well, her first big influence was Jan MacDonald, who was her junior high music teacher. She also says that Brad Garner has helped her along considerably.

As much as music is a big part of her life,

Elissa's talent is not her entire life. She enjoys being with her friends and loved ones, and always seems to be constantly happy. For Elissa Green, life is something to take seriously, but also to have fun doing.

Huntington's Super Writers

For the past four years Huntington's Literary Department has had the unique influences of many very talented writers. Three of which, who have had a major influence are Josh Botkin, Noel Honig and Adam Shapiro.

Josh Botkin's unique literary talent has given him a position as an editor of Huntington's monthly magazine The Dispatch and as a staff writer for the prestigious Long Islander. Not only is Josh an accomplished writer he also is a very involved student. He has been playing the saxophone in the jazz and wind ensembles for the past years. Last year, he participated in Congressman Robert Mrazek's Student Congress in Washington D.C. He is the executive councilman of the Honor Society. After graduation he plans on attending college somewhere in the east. There he plans to study either Law or Journalism. Josh's favorite quote is one by Henry Thoreau, "Beware of all enterprises requiring a change of clothes."

Noel Honig, despite being a brilliant writer has a witty, commical sense of humor. This can be seen in his "From Behind Dark Glasses" column in the Dispatch. His realistic (or sometimes pessimistic) editorials have been keeping readers laughing for two years now. He also has been on the Etcetera staff for four years. Noel is co-captain of the Varsity Fencing team as well. The HHS choir also takes up much time in Noel's calendar. He is in the Boy's Select and Chamber Choir. Noel has also been an editor for the year-book which has been said to be by nine out of ten experts to be the best in the world! Noel was ranked sixth in his class. His high ranking and number of activities opens him to a wide range of colleges to pick from.

To truly describe Adam J. Shapiro one could write a book. For the past two years at Huntington High not a day has gone by when we have not heard something from Adam. Mostly because he has been the voice of the morning announcements, but that does not mean we would not hear something about him, if he were not. Adam has been involved both on the sports field and in the press box. At the home basketball games Adam's voice is usually heard announcing the play by play action. On the baseball team Adam gets his chance to shine. Adam's knowledge of sports trivia make him quite an expert in the field. Thus his articles about football and basketball always are exciting, even if the game was not. After graduation Adam plans on pursuing a career in broadcast journalism. Adam's biggest claim to fame is being the first student to be editor-in-chief of the Dispatch for two years in a row. When asked what he wants to be when he grows up Adam replied, Marv Albert.

Xavier, or better known as Paco, Palacios has lived his entire life in New York, yet to him, English is only a second language, Spanish is his first. He is a chairman of the Latin Community Center, which aids charities, offers counsel and tutors students in need of help. After school and all afternoon on Saturdays, Paco works at Goodyear tires; at night on the weekends however, he goes to parties and often just "hangs out" with friends. Football also plays an important part in Xavier's life. He has been playing football since he was twelve and is now a varsity football player here at the high school. Someday he even wishes to play professionally. During his spare hours, Paco can be found working on his car (his prize possession), or playing with his little brother — the most important person in his life. Although his brother is the most important person in his life, Paco feels that his mother has had the greatest influence upon him, for it is she who gives him encouragement and through her enthusiasm, helps him strive to achieve. Over the past summer, Paco has learned just how important his family is to him, and he to them. While visiting the Galapagos Islands, he grew terribly homesick, and upon returning, he discovered both his parents to be very sick, in fact, they were both in the hospital. While his family holds great importance for him, Paco realizes that he must become more independent. This is the one thing which he wishes to change about himself, his reliance upon his family.

TOM RUBINO:

It seems that everyone knows Tom Rubino. And why not? After all, he is the president of G.O. But, there's more to Tom than meets the eye. When his father passed away in ninth grade [right in the middle of finals], it took a lot of strength and determination to see it through those weeks. With the kindness and understanding of his friends, he was able to make it. After that trying experience, Tom came to a conclusion; life is too precious to waste — he decided that he was going to make every minute count, and not sit back and watch the world pass him by. And that's exactly what he did. Today, besides being president of GO, he plays on the varsity volleyball and baseball teams, is in Youth and Government, on the Dispatch staff, playfestival, and honor society.

One of the biggest problems that Tom sees in our school is the communication barrier between students and faculty. In order to improve relations, he has formed a committee called the SSAC. All faculty including teachers, hall monitors, and custodians are members. Likewise, students from all walks of life are encouraged to attend, in order to prevent this from becoming an elitist committee. Tom hopes that this will help solve communication problems, but readily admits that this is only a first step and hopes that future students and faculty will take the initiative to break the barrier that presently exists.

Tom's proudest moment came when the school rallied behind him and nominated him Homecoming King. Yet, he also admits his faults, and has dubbed himself the Procrastination King. One day Tom hopes to not only start a project, but also finish one. In any event, Tom has applied early decision to Dartmouth, and plans on studying political science. In ten years, Tom can see himself married, and a lawyer, still living in Huntington. Tom likes to think of himself as having the drive and determination of a Thomas Edison, who once said: "I haven't failed; I've just found 10,000 things that don't work."

On the first day of school a newsletter was distributed by the officers in the junior class. It was obvious that their class would have a successful year! The goals and ideas for the 1987-88 school year were set. A special "Happy Birthday" to all juniors who were celebrating their birthday within the next 2 weeks were announced. The junior class officers haven't let us down since that very first day! The "Class Newsletter" was an important part of correspondence within the juniors.

When starting the year off Cindy Cesare's main goal was to get as many kids in our class involved in school and class activities as possible. When Homecoming '87 rolled around (October 24th), many new faces were seen helping out with the float. (A number one float, by the way!!) We would decide on a movie theme. There were many to choose from but we decided on Rock-n-Roll Beach movies. While kids walked through the junior hallway, you could really feel the beach spirit and the great effort that was put into it. On float night, we knew we had a lot ahead of us. With superhard workers like Vinnie Palmieri, Krista Larson, Pam Knoepp, Vanessa Cuomo, Scott Calitri, Charlie Spak, Andy Stone, Maureen Howley, Jen Forsberg, Cathy Palmer, Genevieve Sterbenz, and Cindy Cesare. The Beach Float was completed at seven a.m. on October 24th. Even though the juniors lost the float and hallway competition to the seniors, many felt it was a big win in other ways. The class of '89 worked very hard. It was the most class participation ever. Many juniors took pride in that.

With the prom lingering over the heads of the class officers they chose Vanessa Cuomo to head the prom committee. She is a hard worker and is always helping out. The decision to give Vanessa an honorary position of Publicity officer was a good one. "There is so much to do and Vanessa is willing to help. It makes it much easier for everyone that she is in charge of the prom!" says Sarah Taylor, junior class vice president. The prom will be held at the Renaissance Gala in Plainview. The date will be June 23, 1988. The juniors all hope it runs successfully.

With no money and a prom coming up, the juniors organized as many fundraisers that they could. During fall sports, they held bake sales every Thursday. Leslie Tane, the treasurer realized that "most of the money we made from the bake sales had to go to families that bought supplies for us for homecoming!" With help from Mark Morgianni and Leslie Tane the juniors organized a Saturday afternoon garage sale. They profited over a hundred dollars. Then, Homecoming pictures were sold to the students. This brought in two hundred and ten dollars. Next, the juniors tackled the idea of selling H.H.S. boxer shorts, which the officers hope to sell as soon as possible. "I think everyone will want a pair of H.H.S. boxers, if it ever goes through!" says Jen Haytaian the recording secretary.

This year in the play festival, Leslie Tane decided to write the juniors play. It is called "Winter Kills". "I wrote it to suit our stage needs and the number of people who want to be in it. A lot of people want to have a small part. So I could account for that when I wrote it." says Leslie Tane. The juniors hope they can put together a successful play. Their hopes are high to win this year.

Sarah Taylor and Jen Chapin have proven to be responsible and organized officers.

"Without Sarah our class newsletter would never be in existence!" says Mrs.

Cuomo, the class advisor. She has acknowledged Sarah's responsibility of getting the newsletter written. Jen Chapin has taken an active part in the Unger Program. She hopes that "more people in our school realize the extent of hunger, even in our own town."

"All of the officers are basically there for each other when help is needed. Mrs. Cuomo is truly the nucleus that bonds us all together. Without her I don't know what we would do. I really don't think we could have succeeded as well as we did this year if it wasn't for her!"

says Cindy Cesare, the class president.

J U N I O R S

Chris Jensen is a man of many talents. From afar he appears to be a shy, intelligent sort of guy, who roams the halls in his own tye-dyes. Closer investigation reveal a most interesting valedictorian candidate.

Chris's interests include skateboarding, soccer games, new wave (as well as classic rock) music. He treasures his free time. He enjoys spending it with one friend at a time so he can really get to know someone. He enjoys discovering his own talents. For example, by experimenting, he found that he had a natural love and talent for skateboarding and new wave music. Chris is unique in that he has made most of his wardrobe. He can be seen walking around in his own homemade exotic tye-dyes.

Chris's summers have been filled with, in some cases, long bike trips, to places like Iowa and Maine. One summer he went on a seven day, five hundred mile trip in and around the state of Iowa. Not only was the trip a source of grueling seven hour riding days, but it opened him up to a whole bunch of greater possibilities. Chris likes to try and understand people as to what they are. He also tries to be as non-judgemental about people.

His greatest influence comes from the artist Jackson Polick. It was Polick's talent for creating masterful works that influenced him to "dare to be different". However, Polick devoted his whole life to art, and only art. Eventually this drove Polick insane and finally to his death. Chris, thus tries to keep himself well rounded and not centered indefinitely on one thing.

How Chris can be so involved in such an array of qualities yet keep the extremely high academic average remains a mystery to all of HHS. It is shocking to find out that, even though he seems to have such a organized academic schedule, he considers to be the biggest procrastinator in the school. It just goes to prove that there are some things that everybody has in them.

Jen Chapin. The very name contains an aura of mystery. Who is this confused girl? In speaking with Ms. Chapin, I detected a twinge of sarcasm in her answers. Let's see what we can make of it.

Jen grew up in a small village of Zimbabwe, then moved to Huntington, when she was two. She enjoys Huntington when on the weekends she likes to party till she drops. When she finally recovers, besides want to relax, she enjoys gardening and shuffleboard, besides listening to music, skiing, and most of all sleeping.

During her past years at Huntington High, her activities have included being actively involved in G.O., choir, Play Festival, Key Club, and playing on the newly formed Girls' Lacrosse teams. She is also Corresponding Secretary of the Class of '89, and is involved with various Hunger projects G.O. is currently working on. She spends much of her time helping Hunger projects both in Youth Ending Hunger, and projects throughout Huntington that her mother is working on. All this and she manages to maintain an A average.

The people who have greatly influenced Jen (besides Ozzy Osbourne) are her mother and father. And those things that are most important to her are her family and friends.

On a serious note Jen says about school, "School Spirit should not just consist of cheering for our teams or decorating the halls, etc., but should really mean that you care about other students and people in the community and want to help them out."

IN MEMORY OF LAVELL TOOMER

YOU WERE MY FRIEND FOR QUITE A WHILE.
 I ALWAYS KNEW OUR FRIENDSHIP WOULD LAST A WHILE.
 THEN ONE DAY BROUGHT A SUDDEN CHANGE.
 HE CAME ALONG AND TOOK YOU AWAY.

IT TOOK A LONG TIME TO GET OVER THE SHOCK.
 I WISH YOU HAD BEEN PROTECTED BY A KEY AND A LOCK.
 PEOPLE ALWAYS SAY TIME GOES ON.
 WITHOUT YOUR GUIDANCE I MAY GO WRONG.

I THINK ABOUT YOU ALL THE TIME.
 I WISH YOU WERE STILL AROUND.
 BUT YOUR NOT, AND TIME GOES ON.
 I EVEN REMEMBER OUR FAVORITE SONG.

WE'LL SEE EACH OTHER AGAIN SOME DAY.
 UNTIL THAT DAY I'LL JUST HOPE AND PRAY.
 I'LL NEVER FORGET YOU AS YOU CAN TELL.
 THERE WILL NEVER BE ANOTHER LIKE LAVELL.

Miles Away

We are miles away . . .
 circumstances separated us.
 Now,
 united souls
 miles away.
 But this distance between us made me love you more than anything in the world, missing you
 every minute that passes away.
 Everytime I'm reminded of beautiful moments between us, a powerful sadness fills my heart.
 My eyes . . . filled with tears
 because I cannot understand why we are so far away . . .
 but I'm sure
 if you love me as I love you,
 we will be together again;
 forever.

Cindy Cesare has been an active member of school activities since her freshmen year. She was the Corresponding Secretary of her freshmen class. She participated in Key Club for the last two years and plays on the Tennis team in the fall. She helps the basketball team in the winter, she does the J.V. Boys Book for them and she played on the first girls Lacrosse team last spring. In her Junior year she decided to go out for Deca, and is competing in Public Service Radio. She is the Sports Editor of the yearbook. But the happiest moment of her life was when she was elected Junior Class President. Cindy really worked hard for it, and has shown her responsibility as a class officer.

After all this, Cindy still tries to find time for her friends and family. Weekends are usually spent "hanging out" or going to parties or just plain sleeping. Hillary Gruder is a person who is very much involved. She's already helped with many school projects and activities such as; Lee Van Ming, the Guide Dogs, Key Club, SADD, G.O., Honor Society, and Volleyball.

After all this, she doesn't have much spare time. With the time she does have, she enjoys partying, being with friends, and talking on the phone.

Her greatest strength is her greatest weakness. He's also her biggest influence — Hillary's brother. They're always competing with one another. This has helped shaped her outgoing character, yet she sometimes becomes too possessive for a goal and does too much. If things don't work out, she'll get moody and frustrated.

Hillary has always lived in Huntington. She wants to go to the University of Penn., Northwestern, Cornell or Tufts. In the future she sees herself "doing something with writing." This is due to the fact that in fourth grade she won a writing contest.

Hillary enjoys fond memories of day-camp. There she learned much. Also, it created an embarrassing moment too — when she walked outside without her pants on! (I'm sure there's more to this story!)

Friends and family are very important to her. And the word she uses to describe herself, is, "outgoing".

S O P H O M O R E S

It's the year of 1990 and it's graduation day. As our valedictorian gives his speech, we all start to reminisce about our highschool years. We remember our efforts towards making our freshmen year successful. Then, we thought of our sophomore year. A year in which we begin to mature. We advanced in unity, spirit and towards that uniqueness that every class develops.

As we go back to that year we can remember our class officers . . . who were they again? Oh yes. We remember they were: President — Jennifer Fortunato, Vice President — Tara Dugan, Recording Secretary — Jennifer Stevens, Corresponding Secretary — Ellen Endrizzi, and Treasurer — Lucas Detor. They were all so different and only worried about their immediate lives until after they were elected. Then, they became one and put forth their main concerns in our class. Each of the five had a special personality. Energetic enough to show our class a student government that hadn't been seen in years. It was the first year that all five officers made sincere efforts to greaten our class. With her smiling face, Miss De Canio, the sophomore advisor kept us on our toes, and led us through victories as well as defeats.

The float. To our knowledge homecoming hadn't seen such an interesting combination of ideas built on one float. Considering that the ideas supporting the science fiction theme jumped from coffins containing devils, to airplanes, to Godzilla, and to the stay puffed marshmellow han. Isn't it ironic what it turned out to be? For those of you that don't remember, it was a Smithtown West King Kong kicking a football towards a Huntington goal, which a devil intercepted. A U.F.O. rose with the successful interception between all the float parties and the dedication from the Stevens, the Hennings, the Pacts, the Guidos, the Greens', the Rogans, Pete Nakelski, and the others who helped. The float was completed. It may not have won any award but it was something that our class was proud of.

After Homecoming everything in our memory kind of runs together. It's a blur of goodtimes filled with fun and laughter. We can remember our attempts towards fund raising. What were they? Selling calendars and gift wrapping paper? Yes, that's it. Also our major bake sales. We all gained ten pounds! Then, there was play festival. Our play was "The Diamond Caper". We had many dedicated directors, actors, and stage crew.

Although most of the sophomores were a little laid back in some of our activities, we had a lot of fun 1987-88 (that was the year, right?). We learned alot about ourselves and we became closer with our fellow classmates. That year we had a taste of success, and had to deal with defeat. Wait, what was that? Did they just call my name for my diploma? As I stand on line to receive my diploma I look at my classmates and notice they all have dazed look on their faces. They too, must be thinking of our sophomore year!

The Freshman Class of 1991

It all started on that bleak September day in 1978 when we had to start school for the first time. I can remember the curious looks and the cries from my classmates. To think that this was just the beginning. These people, along with many others, have made the class of '91 what it is today.

Throughout our elementary school years we learned to make friends and our interests in new things were aroused. By sixth grade we were comfortable with our friends and our schools. Then, all of a sudden, we graduated from elementary school and went to J. Taylor Finley Junior High. This we knew was going to be a big change!

The first day was the hardest. When we looked around we wondered how we would ever get along with all these people! Making friends and fitting in was just as hard as adjusting to the new school. Finding your locker and opening it became a group task! By the end of the year we were sure of just where we fit in. Then we thought we were the Big Eighth Graders! It didn't last long because soon we had to go to Huntington High School!

Upon learning about Float Night it seemed almost unimaginable that our class could all work towards one goal. But to everyone's delight, we did it and produced what everyone said was the best Freshman Float ever. Along with the help of our class advisor, Mrs. Taylor, everyone united together, not as enemies, but as friends.

These were the same people who we thought we'd never get along with! Fortunately we did. Later on in the year, our same spirit carried us through Play Festival when we performed "String of Pearls".

Our class of 1991 is a really spectacular group. By our Senior year we will be among one of the best classes to ever graduate from Huntington High School.

To be exemplary, a high school faculty should, among other traits, possess qualities of patience, understanding, and leadership. The staff at Huntington High School not only ranks tops in these categories, but many members also contribute much more to the growth and development of their students. While teaching students to read, to write, and to compute still remain high on the agendas of all teachers, many also bring to the classroom other qualities and experiences that enrich and enhance their pupil's lives. Here are some of these characteristics.

Above all, our teachers are dedicated to their calling. They have no doubt that they are engaged in the world's most important work. For the most part, they are proud to be teachers and view their profession and their colleagues with dignity and pride. Intellectual curiosity and spiritual success are more important to them than material success in life.

Our teachers keep in touch with the world around them and do not limit their contacts with adults in the community to school affairs. Check the local newspapers and you will see how these associations have enriched their lives, stimulated their minds with their ideas, and broadened their views so that they, in turn, are better equipped to serve their students.

Many of our teachers have a capacity — and respect — for hard work. They do not put limits on their time or efforts or energies. The final bell of the day does not end their job. Instead, job-related tasks such as conferring with parents, giving extra help to students to discussing problems with colleagues and administration to planning lessons to grading assignments continue to occupy their time. They then continue on with improving their own knowledge and skill by reading and attending lectures, workshops, and graduate courses.

Most of all, however, most of our teachers have enthusiasm and admiration for their students. This admiration goes beyond respect and friendship. To our good teachers, young people are exciting, intelligent, eager, idealistic. To them, these students are the hope for the future. They are confident that these young men and women will succeed. Because of this belief, our staff, as a whole, feels that every student is invaluable with his/her own talents and aptitudes, and that it is their role to help every one of them release and express the value within him. Their goal is to see that no student is ignored; no student is patronized; no student is lost or hopeless or unteachable or forgotten.

These are the qualities that have brought success, honor, and recognition to our faculty, making it one of which we can all be justly proud, since they insure the quality education that has long been the hallmark of our school.

TRACEY COGSWELL

Mrs. Tracey Cogswell is a far cry from the average teacher at H.H.S. She has an aura about her alive with an electricity, making her truly unique. That single quality gives her an exiting stage-like presence which has developed throughout a lifetime of experience in theater and teaching.

Born in New York City and raised in Carnegie Hall in the infamous Studio 809, her childhood was erratic, bouncing from rehearsal to rehearsal, performance to performance. She had a difficult time in high school having to deal with extreme criticism for her unique personality that was as evident then as it is now. In hopes of discouraging her from becoming an actress her parents sent her to John Marshall University to study English, she majored in drama. She graduated and furthered her training in Europe. Later she married and had two daughters, Meegan and Cathleen. Of everything in her life Mrs. Cogswell feels that the motherhood of her two girls is the most important thing ever to happen to her.

Having lived all over the world Mrs. Cogswell has acquired a worldly flare that she shares with her daughters. Though they see each other rarely they manage to stay in touch and "remain closer than many families that live together."

The Mrs. Cogswell of today is quite a different one from the wild actress she once was. She was a gypsy with an uncontrollable temper and roaming urge, but something happened to change all that. She met Theodore R. Cogswell who was responsible for the most magnificent times of her life; helping her to become the mature responsible "semi-stable" adult she is today. Indeed Mrs. Cogswell's life has been one of continuous growth, discovering new ideas and ways of looking at her own life and how to live each minute as it comes. One day she hopes to travel sharing her experiences, and to anyone who'll listen, her life story. In the one word Mrs. Cogswell used to describe herself her entire life can be summed up, overwhelming! All-ways able to defy the odds and come out stronger for it, Mrs. Tracey Cogswell truly deserves the respect and admiration of all!!!!

ANDY HOUSHOLDER

Mr. Housholder has always been one to get really involved in whatever is around him. In his home town of Bowling Green, Ohio, he spent his school years in all aspects of school life. Vice President of his class for three years, and student government president, he was also very involved with choir right from the start, and in all the plays, plus being an active member of the golf team.

He has studied music extensively with many of the world's top choral directors who have been a great influence on him. The three most significant events that have influenced him were the State Convention in Buffalo in 1967; winning first prize at the competition at Belgium in 1980, and the performance of the Sea Symphony by the Nassau Symphony Orchestra in 1981. The most disappointing period of his life was when the 1986 tour choir was denied the right to go to Belgium, after they had

Making beautiful music and hearing it, obviously are very important to him. With what time he has left over, he spends gardening, painting, and collecting Steuben Glass. After he retires, he plans on taking gourmet cooking classes, and setting up tours allowing students to travel all over the world. One of the accomplishments that Mr. Housholder is most proud of is his work at the Old First Church. During his twenty years as music director there, he has much to be proud of.

One of the most important things to Mr. Housholder is being around people. "I'm a people person," he says. And obviously people have come to be attached to this man who has made many friends within the community and all over the world. For all his enthusiasm and drive, Mr. Housholder will be missed at Huntington High in future years.

RAY DEREN

When people think of another High School the first thing that usually comes to mind is sports. They usually associate the school with how their team did against our team and then on and on. For years now when people first hear the name Huntington High, (unless they were a graduate) will usually associate the name with some the toughest might not have this vision if it were not for Ray Deren. When Mr. Deren first came to Huntington High, in 1968, we were not as well known as we are now. From a sports view Huntington was not always the most feared team in another school's schedule. As the years went on the name Huntington began to grow with prestige. Mr. Deren took a district with a total of 28 teams, including the Junior High, and shaped it to what it is today. It was under Mr. Deren's administration that Huntington has added a bowling team, girl's soccer team, gymnastics team, swim team, fencing team and two new track teams. Not to mention the most recent additions of a Girl's Lacrosse team and Boy's Volleyball. Huntington has also been the first high school in New York State to have a full time, fully licensed trainer. In his years as administrator he has faced many problems. Problems that people would not really conceive as major problems but really are. For example, what do you do when there is not enough space for the Girl's and Boy's Lacrosse and the Girl's and Boy's Softball and Baseball teams to practice? Or what do you do when its the day before a crucial football game and someone has left a message burned into the field? These are problem's that he, as administrator has had to deal with.

Now, in 1988, we have no more room for banners on our gymnasium walls. Times are changing and so is the position of Phys Ed. Administrator. After twenty years at Huntington High School Ray Deren is retiring. He plans to work on what he enjoys the most, home renovations, reading and drawing. Though we might not see him around the school as much as we would like to, he will probably still be a familiar face in the bleachers.

JAMES EDWARDS

James Edwards can be seen in the hallways socializing and or reprimanding students, at the football or basketbal games chatting with coaches students and players or wherever people may be found. Known to the students as Mr. Edwards, he has become one of the most popular administrators in the school. There are many reasons why.

Mr. Edwards was born and raised in a close knit suburban community in Jacksonville, Florida. He is the second oldest out of five brothers and sisters. He remembers his early days as being "great" and filled with "alot of great times". In high school he was treasurer of the student body, played the drums in the school band and was always involved in some way. From there he went on to study one year at Morgan University in Baltimore, Maryland. He then transferred to Florida A & M where he received his Bachelor of Science and then went on to get a masters degree in Math. After college he taught high school math for two years in Irvington, Georgia. Then in 1977 he moved to Hempstead, Long Island. There he began teaching at Amityville High School. In January of 1986 he was asked to temporarily fill the position of assistant principal at Amityville High. Then in 1987 he came to Huntington.

On his summer vacations Mr. Edwards enjoys traveling around the United States. He has been all over the country. His favorite place of all times is the Grand Canyon. Only once you have been there yourself you will see why. On his trips around the country he enjoys just talking to people and seeing what their lifestyle is like and why.

The best way to describe James Edwards is a man who is firm but fair. He is also known to be a really nice guy who will take the time to talk out problems. He feels that too often people look at the bad things in our society and fail to give equal recognition to the good things people are doing.

COACH JOE LUCEY

This year Huntington's Blue Devil Football team took a close second for the title of Conference Champion. This season similar to others in that the players, coaches and fans could all look back and say, "Hey, we have just had another great season. One to be proud of." One man who we can all be proud of is head coach of the Varsity Football Squad, Coach Joe Lucey. Success is not something new to Coach Lucey, in his twenty seven years as coach he has led the team to nine league championships, a conference title and record of one hundred thirty two wins, seventy six losses and eight ties. There are not that many coaches of any sport who can boast such a record.

Joe Lucey has lived a most interesting life. He was born and raised in the Baldwin community in Nassau County. He attended Chaminade High School where he was very active in the school's sports and extracurricular activities. During his four years there he played basketball, baseball and was the star quarterback for the team. After graduation in 1947, he went to Cortland State. All through college he played football and baseball. After college he served in the Army. For two years he was stationed in the Supreme Allied Headquarters in Paris, France. Mr. Lucey was a Military Police Officer (MP) and was also involved in special services work. In 1954 he came back to Long Island. He then went to Hofstra University full time to get his Masters in Physical Education. Soon after he began teaching in Great Neck. In September of 1955 came to Huntington. When he first came Al Donafrio was head varsity coach. That May of 1956 he was married to Joyce Brittan. They then bought a house in Commack where they live today. Later Coach Lucey went by a different name, Dad. His three daughters Jill, Dierdre and Heather were all cheerleaders during highschool.

Coach Joe Lucey has not only proved himself as a successful football coach but as a man who has record of being successful at everything. He believes that his greatest satisfaction comes from knowing that he has influenced a student or player in positive successful way. This year Joe Lucey will be retiring to spend time with his wife and travel around the country. We will definitely miss him, but we can be sure he will not be stranger at Blue Devil games.

Come September, the faces you see on these pages will not be returning to HHS, for they will be retiring. We wish them health and happiness and we thank them for their many years of dedication to the students of Huntington. May all they have given us be returned to them in kindness.

S P O R T S

At Huntington High School, athletics are an invaluable commodity. For the athletes involved, they get a chance to learn responsibility, sportsmanship and the competitive nature so necessary in the world today. It's a chance to exercise and be physically fit while striving to be the best athlete and teammate possible. For the faithful spectators, who enjoy watching the fruits of the players' labor, they are a chance to rally behind a classmate or friend and show the support needed by any organized group. It's a chance to show some of the Blue Devil school spirit, and show pride in the public home of learning for over 1500 students Huntington High School.

The memories generated from the Blue Devil sportsworld are simply astounding. First there are the teams, who fought so valiantly for the Blue Devil cause. Like the 1987 girl's soccer team who rampaged through an undefeated league season, outscoring their opponents by the astounding grand total of 70-20. Or the Blue Devil football team, who used an explosive offense and bonecrushing defense to win their league and place high in the prestigious Rutgers Cup list, symbolic of the supreme team in Suffolk County. And who will forget the day the girl's tennis team ended rival Half Hollow Hills West's 100 consecutive match winning streak? And what of the mighty boy's soccer team.

Then there are the coaches, those figures of leadership who were the architects of so many winning strategies. Who will forget John Bifulco's antics on the soccer sidelines? Or Gil Smith's reactions at the girl's swim meets. The sweetest sight had to be the expression on retiring football mentor Joe Lucey's face after his team won the league title.

What about the remarkable accomplishments by the athletes themselves? Hope Suthers was spectacular all year, and was rewarded by placing on the All-America team, the first Huntington soccer player-boy or girl — to ever place on that list. Caroline Daley looked like Martina Navratilova's sister all season, blasting her opponents at every chance. And what about the gridiron tandem of Derek McCord and Darren Ward, who won almost every major high school football award in creation after their sparkling seasons.

Huntington sports . . . ah, what a year.

The 1987 Blue Devils Football team finished their season 8-2, good for the league III championship and conference II runner up. The Blue Devils were a team of many accomplishments. Darren Ward, an all conference runner, churned for 1397 yards and 22 touchdowns in ten games. All conference quarterback Derek McCord threw nearly 1000 yards and 13 aerial scores. Many Devils fans will remember images of Derek McCord lofting touchdown bombs to all conference wide receiver Kevin Thorbourne. Other all league Blue Devils were Jason Blum, tight end; Ishy Sutton, running back; Fred Torres, defensive tackle; and Sean Josey, All League Safety.

Outstanding Defensive Award:

Sean Josey — 156 tackles, 3 fumble recoveries, 7 tackles for losses, 2 blocked kicks.

Outstanding Defensive Lineman

Reed Cocker and honorable mention for All League.

Outstanding Defensive Back

Ishy Sutton, with 65 tackles and 2 interceptions.

Outstanding Running Back

Kevin Thorbourne, with 24 receptions, 687 total yards, and 8 touchdowns. He was named All league, All County and New York Daily News All Star Team.

Outstanding Players in home games

Offensive: Kevin Thorbourne, Darren Ward, Jason Blum, Scott Copeland. Defensive: Lonnie McMillan, David Williams, Ishy Sutton, Sean Josey, Dean Liakos, Reed Cocker and Paco

Most Valuable Player

Darren Ward won this, plus the Hansen Award, presented for being the best High School player in the county — the first time that a Huntington student was presented this award.

The Man most responsible for this fantastic season is Coach Joe Lucey. In his final year at Huntington after 27 years serving as head coach, Lucey was named "Dean of Suffolk County Coaches." Huntington's record of 139-79 speaks for itself, as do the many championship banners hanging in the gymnasium.

J.V. FOOTBALL

The J.V. football team finished the season with a 3-5 record. Although the team played with determination, the breaks of the game did not go our way. A penalty here, fumble there, all resulted in a close loss instead of a victory.

There were some bright spots in our year. Quentin Young shifted from wide receiver to quarterback and did an outstanding job. Peter Guido, running from the halfback position, was our most consistent ground gainer. Bobby Cade, our co-captain, anchored the defensive unit.

There were also some strange experiences during the season. The officials never showed up at Central Islip so we had to play in a controlled scrimmage. The East Islip game was delayed because of a sniper on Sunrise Highway.

The coaching staff fully appreciates the effort given by each player and wishes them the best of luck on the Varsity squad next year.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

This year the freshman football team, like every other year, played at the junior high level. But, coach Asaro was still extremely proud of his team. They managed to secure a record of 3-2 including two impressive shutouts. Chris Island was an outstanding running back and a great safety on defense. Tim Colbert had a great season as quarterback — and he's only an eighth grader. Nick Rega was also an outstanding player. The rest of the Devils played excellently as well.

Boys Volleyball

This year was the first for our new Boys Volleyball team. We only had a varsity program, so the team consisted of mostly juniors and seniors. The team, although they lost all of their meets but two, consider the season a success — especially for a first time team. Special thanks to dedicated coaches — Georgia Deren and Vic Matarasso. The team showed a lot of promise and maybe next year the varsity and J.V. program will get in some serious action.

Boy's Soccer

What a year Boy's Soccer had! With many returning seniors, the team had a league record of 9-1-2 and an over record of 14-2-3. We finished in 2nd place in league III, right behind Newfield.

High scorers were Jon Lipsit, with 10 goals and Dee Brathwaite with 10. Not far behind was Brian Shanley, a freshman, who had 8. Jon Lipsit was also the leader in assists with 11. Dee Brathwaite and Mike Murray each had 6 assists.

All league selections in league III were Dee Brathwaite, Brian Dunne, Mark Boyd, Jon Lipsit and Jim Killen.

The team was highlighted by outstanding defense led by goalkeeper Bill Arneth, sweeper back Brian Dunne, stopper back Jim Moore and wing fullbacks Mark Boyd and Robbie Troy. Together, they combined for a record setting 11 shutouts!

The J.V. program for soccer this year was very strong. With many new freshman the team played well offensively and defensively. The proof of this was the great record that they had at the end of the season.

The 1987 Girls Varsity Tennis Team had a great season, finishing League III champs & County semi-finalists. Team members Nancy Wagner, Rebecca Ketcham, Liz Gould, Anna Salek & Toby Holbriech all won rounds in the Conference Tournament. Amy Hiem & Holly Roxenberg were placed doubles winners. Andrea O'Brien 5th place singles & Carolyn "Martina" Daley 1st place singles champion, which brought her to the State Tournament in Syracuse. One of the teams greatest accomplishments was their victory in which they "sat on" arch rival Hills West breaking their 99 consecutive match winning streak. Great effort & enthusiasm from the whole team made this season such a success. The team wishes to thank coach Ron Cuppernull and Cheering section Enzo Albicocco for their support.

The Blue Devil Girls Soccer team finished their season with 15 straight wins before its loss to Brentwood in round II of county play. The team had an outstanding season, producing new stars and many All-County and All-League selections. The team itself was League III champions with the record of 12 and 0. The girls that made All-League were Hope Suthers, Thea Mavoides, Susie Mick, Karen Fischer and Jen Leonard. All-County selections were Hope Suthers, Thea Mavoides, and Susie Mick. A special congratulations to HOPE SUTHERS who made ALL-STATE and ALL-NORTHEASTERN REGION. HOPE is also the only Blue Devil soccer player who made the ALL-AMERICAN TEAM. The team had a final record of 17 wins, and 2 losses, WHAT A GREAT SEASON THEY HAD!!!

The J.V. Girls Soccer team had an incredible season this year. Especially since almost the entire team consisted of freshmen. The team was very strong and Coach Parry was quite pleased with their performance. Congratulations on a final record of 10-3-1.

VARSITY FIELD HOCKEY

The Field Hockey team finished their season with a record of 2 wins, 8 losses, and 2 ties. Even though they had 8 losses, their games were extremely close. Most of the games went into over-time. The team will greatly miss their seniors, who contributed in a big way this season. They were Jeane Baumann, Jill Burke, Melissa Deutsch, Dana Gazzini, Allison Marlow, Christine Oehler, Kristen Riggs, and Carol Zillmann.

The rest of the Field Hockey team considered of: Hillary Bellock, Sophie Courtemanche, Chris Crocco, Julie Cryer, Stacey Dubin, Jen Fiore, Karina Halversen, Lisa Lauro, Heather Martin, Peggy Mueller, Liza Polay, Candice Prior, Alicia Robinson, Liz Salhoff, Chrissy Schimmel, Kirsten Smith, Jen Stevens, and Sarah Taylor.

The 1987-88 Blue Devils Boy's basketball team experienced another fine season, completing a second undefeated League Championship (12-0) and finishing the regular season at 17-2. The predominantly senior squad was led by Co-captain Charles Dixon (All League, All Conference), Darren Ward (All League, All Conference), Derek McCord (All League, All Conference), Kevin Thorbourne (All League) and Lloyd Butler (Honorable Mention All league). The very strong Huntington bench was led by senior Rafael Moran, Jason Blum, and Johnny Green and Juniors Co-Captain Mike Murray, Keil Sands, J.T. Taylor, and Barry Mohammed. During the season games: The Devils set a team scoring record of more than 74 points per game; Charles Dixon set new season and career assist records and Derek McCord became Huntingtons all-time leading rebounder. Special thanks to Wayne Ackerman and the wonderful men and women who did stats: Jen Boyd, Tara Scalia, Sean Winchell, Hilary Gruder, Jimmy Scheff, Liz Johnson, Amy Clement, and David Boyer.

Wow! what an amazing season these men had! With a dynamic starting five consisting of Jeff Davis, Jeff Quigley, Brian Dixon, John Paci, and Chuck Forte, how could a team go wrong? Also, with exceptional players like Brian Shanley, (who is only a Freshman and brings much potential talent for the future) and Eric Sands and Hudie Lewis, it seemed like there was no end to their power! And boy did the crowd get excited when the coaches put in John Hassett and Johnny Moran! And how could we forget Jimmy Moore (who, by the way, got more carnations on Carnation Day than any other J.V. Basketball player.) And he did play great Basketball too, always playing only two games with shot after shot! Now, you ask, what was their record? Yes! They were UNDEFEATED in their league, and losing only two games in their Holiday Tournament, before their "official" season started.

Congratulations to a winning team that just wouldn't quit! And special thanks to coach O'Donnell who is a pusher for success and survivor anyway you come down to it!

When the varsity girls team started their season, their hopes for winning a league record was not what they planned. To much of their surprise they did exceptionally well in their league. With super athletes like Tara Mizell, Karen Fischer, Debi Brady and Vicki Broschard, the team came together and formed a "destruction Machine". Everyone contributed in their own talents, and congratulations to Karyn Forte and Natalie Cacciatore who are only freshmen.

The Varsity Girls team was very much in the "limelite" with all their wins this year. What about J.V. Basketball? They had a fantastic season also! Working with a mostly freshmen team the season went smoother than most expected. And why should Varsity get all the credit? Congratulations to a winning J.V. team this year. We look forward to seeing these fine, young female athletes do their "stuff" next year on Varsity! Their final record was 9-2.

LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

This year Coach Lou Gianì's varsity wrestling team dominated Suffolk County competition once again. The season began with a great start. In the own Christmas Tournament held at Huntington the wrestlers took first place with 211 points. The dual meet season opened with further success. The Devils beat their first five teams by at least thirty points, until Massapequa. No team in Suffolk County's history has had a consecutive winning streak as long as Huntingtons, but the Blue Devil, Huntington fell to Massapequa by two points to break their 64 match winning streak. The upset by Massapequa was a disappointment, Huntington wrestlers finished the dual meet season by burying everyone who got in their way, including teams like Newfield and East Islip, and emerged as League dual meet and tournament champions again.

This year's Varsity lineup, led by Lou Gianì and new assistant varsity coach Frank Picozzi, was a tough bunch of guys. At 91 lbs., Ra-shaan Jackson showed his ability by winning the Christmas and League tournament title, which is quite an accomplishment as a freshman. Jeff Zilm and Ray Fishneich, wrestled great seasons on the varsity team at the 98 lb. class. Three year varsity captain Philip Christopher defeated had 21 win, 3 loss record for his regular season at 105 lb. At 112 lbs. co-captain George Rivera defeated one opponent after another with the most vicious cradle in New York State. Bobby (aka, Bruce) Delacruz put his opponents with the strangest Canadian Freestyle moves anyone has ever seen. At 126 lbs., Bret "the stud" Henke, a sophomore, thrashed his share of opponents. At 132 lbs. co-captain Mark Boyd had a great season. The 138 lb. weight class was filled with Billy "the Greek" Kalfas' colorful matches. At 145 lbs. David Williams and Doug Reeves alternated crushing opponents. Billy McCarthy came back from a back injury to have a great season at 155 lbs. Also successful at 155 lbs. was "Crazy" Jim Wolfhurst. Kyle Sergi dominated his 167 lb. weight class. At 177 lbs. Sophomore Matt Puskas would get the crowd going and Matt Boyd had a great season at 215. Unfortunately, there are not too many 250 pounders, so that Fred "Tyeson" Torres did not have the chance to wrestle as often as he wanted to. However when he did, it was quite a spectacle to watch him cut his opponents down to size.

HUNTINGTON HIGH SCHOOL WRESTLERS FINISH SECOND AT SUFFOLK COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP

Six Blue Devil wrestlers earned All-County honors.

The Devils, for the sixth consecutive year, finished in the top four at the Suffolk County Championships. Three of those years they were also County Champions.

PHIL CHRISTOPHER (12) League 3 Champ 20-5 4th place

RASHAAN JOHNSON (9) League Champ 16-5-1 4th place

MARK BOYD (12) League 3 Champ 27-4-4 3rd place

JEFF ZILM (11) League 3 Champ 14-5 3rd place

BILL KALFAS (12) League Champ 28-2 2nd place to NYS Champ

FRED TORRES (11) League 3 Champ 11-2 2nd place to NYS Runner-up

A great performance from an excellent group of wrestlers. CONGRATULATIONS WRESTLING TEAM!!!

It was also the first season for a boys winter track team to get together. Many of the young men were keeping up on their running from cross country and for others they were simply preparing for Spring track. Basically the team did very well for their first year. With determination and energy the team managed together a tough coached by Dennis Walker, winter track has alot of hope for the future as well.

This was the first for a girls winter track team at Hungtington High. It was great for those who were planning on running for the team in the spring, because of the extra practice time. During those long winter months with no physical activity spring sports really roll around quite abruptly. So for many girls the winter track was a great way to get into shape for the spring sports. All in all the girls had a pretty successful season. Especially since this was the first year they had a girls track team. All winter track meets were played away and the team did well. We look forward to next year!

The 1987-88 Blue Devil Keglers had a roller coaster season from day one. Although many members had graduated from the team, there was still hope that the new members could fill in the holes that had been created. As the year progressed, there were many close matches and tough defeats that the team had to absorb. Even those hard matches didn't quiet the rap music on the long trips home (thank you Rob and Steve and Leslie).

The bright spot of the team was senior Chris Hayden who had a high game of 258 and a league high score of 728. Chris averaged 186 for the year. Along with these numbers, Chris won several Bowling Tour events. As Chris continues to show his bowling skills, his college bowling career awaits him.

The individual success continued as Steve Etheridge and Rich Mattiucci also won Bowling Tour titles and bowled consistently all year. Rob Folz continued to show his leadership and his "never say die" attitude — these are assets which cannot be measured. Keith Meyers and new members Adam Dunefsky and Ian Winchell and Don Harvey have all bowled well for the team.

Intramural Floor Hockey

Intramurals are an important part of any sports curriculum. For those students who don't have the time to commit to a "team", intramurals is a great alternative. At Huntingdon, there is no floor hockey team, so its great for those who enjoy it. The competition this year was tough. The four teams were:

First Place "The Redwings"

Second Place "The Islanders"

Third Place "The Broadway Blues"

Fourth Place "The Crusaders"

The first place team consisted of: Vinnie Palmieri, Ed Lafferty, Jon Riber, Jon Reissman, Adam Miller, Joe Palmieri, Mike Brieger, Mike Cassa, and Keith Evangelist. Mr. Gnolfo deserves credit for organizing and officiating this intramural sport.

The freshmen basketball team had a successful season. The freshmen level is great for those young "potential B-ball athletes" to get prepared for the JV team with coach "O.D." most of the team had played in the past at Junior High, so they all worked well together. Congratulations and get ready for "Sparky!"

If you happen to be hanging around after school by the gym you might see people carrying large white bags with swords! Wait, don't be frightened, they're not here to do their laundry or rescue a "damsel in distress!" You can take a breath and rest because it is only the H.H.S. Fencing!!! Yes you can always tell when fencing season rolls around! This year the fencing team did very well, led by their coach "Biff", (alias Coach Bifulco) and with many new freshman the team has bright new hopes for the future as well.

The Boys Swim Team had another successful season, while compiling a 6-5-1 record. Outstanding performances were recorded by Seniors Neil Griffin in the distance events, Doug Bliven in the 500 Free, and Sean Bourke and Dave Colapietro in the sprints. Neil qualified for the County Championships for his third consecutive year. In addition other county qualifiers were: Bill Arneth (11), Peter Guido (10), David Harms (11), and Eric Weber (11).

The team ended up in third place in the final League 2 standings. Coach Smith is looking for continued success on next years squad, since the majority of the team was composed of freshman and sophomores.

The teams goals for next year will be convincing the Board of Education to appropriate funds for a pool, vieing for a League Championship, improving on this season's record, and recruiting divers, for next years team.

It is halftime at the basketball game, and there is rap 'music' blaring in the gym. The basketball team isn't on the court yet, and at first sight it doesn't appear to be the cheerleaders or the highsteppers. So, who are these young ladies dancing in blue warm-ups with "HHS Drill Team, In Effect" on their shirts? Woowee — it's the fabulous Drill Team! The Drill Team is a new squad advised by Mrs. Anderson. Actually, they are a slight take-off of the Highsteppers, but are unique in their own way. They perform at both Boys and Girls Basketball games; on court they shake and move to rap 'music'. Their main objective is to entertain us, and have fun at the same time.

The Varsity Club is one of the many service organizations at HHS. Its members are all athletes who have received a varsity letter. The purpose of the Varsity Club is to help raise money for the athletic department. Most of the money raised comes from the refreshments that are sold at all home football games and wrestling matches. The money raised is used to purchase trophies, banners, and uniforms.

The Student Trainers Club had a very successful first year. It was a club designed to train students in the care and prevention of athletic injuries. By acquiring skills such as preventative taping of ankles, wrists and fingers, and Basic First Aid care, the students obtain basic knowledge of Sports Medicine and the profession of Athletic Training. Despite the many long, hard hours which demand almost all of their free time, the Student Trainers showed dedication and enthusiasm. From the sub-zero Football practices to the late-night Basketball practices and back again to the outdoors and sunburns of the spring sports, they could always be counted on to do their job. The Student Trainers are a great asset to the Athletic Program.

In explanation:

Due to the fact that we have changed yearbook publishers, we have had to comply with some changes in our format that faithful readers are used to seeing and cannot find in this 1988 issue of THE HUNTINGTONIAN.

To receive this book in June 1988, material must be submitted by the beginning of March, therefore all spring sports, Students Administration Day, the prom and graduation (activities occurring after March 15) can not be included. Previously we put out a supplement that contained photos of these events and mailed notices for pick-up. These post cards, in many cases, were ignored and too often our expense of printing a 16 page spring photographic supplement was a wasteful financial effort. Our neighboring schools overcame this problem by having their book come out in September rather than in June. We know this idea would not be well received by Huntington High School students since part of the nostalgia of owning a yearbook is having it autographed by graduating seniors.

Until we can find a better solution to the problem, some photos of events have been staged and statistics, rosters and articles on spring sports have been omitted through no fault of ours. Blame it on the calendar — if you feel the blame must be placed somewhere. We have done our best to produce a fine quality yearbook for early June delivery.

Sincerely,
The Yearbook Staff

Every year the yearbook has concentrated mainly on activities that occur within the school. Of course, this is the purpose of the yearbook, but there are many activities that go on outside the school that a large majority of the students are involved in.

This past winter, a lot of students were involved with skiing. Either for the day at a local mountain or on a weekend trip.

One of the larger ski trips this year was organized by Greg Schenk and Darren Bedell, who took the responsibility on of taking 80 students to Stowe, Vermont. On Friday, January 8th, 2 busses of students left in a snow blizzard. The long trip paid off because the skiing was great!! The weekend was amazing for mostly everyone. The trip home on Monday was a long one, but almost everyone would agree that the weekend was worth it!!

Huntington Students look forward to more weekend activities to be organized in the future. Andrew Schenk get busy!!

The clubs offered at Huntington High School have always been regarded as diversified. A school with so many different talents and ideas, how could we not have a multi-range of organization? Each year students seek a new and interesting club to participate in considering your interests, talents, friends, knowledge and goals, there is a club here at Huntington High for you. Many students who enjoy working with community service projects, may enjoy to get involved with the Key Club. Or what if you enjoy the life of traveling, and exploring new cultures? Then get active with AFS (American Field Service) and apply to go away, or maybe just host some foreign students in your own home! The challenge of problem solving may be your favorite, then you might want to check out mathletes. And if you are an inspiring young actor/actress, then Drama Club may help you develop these talents. Or you may just be interested in working on the H.H.S. yearbook!

We have a large range of clubs/organizations here at Huntington High, as one can see. These clubs help students find their own potential in what they set out to do, and they may even lay out a path for the future.

When the Huntington High School students newspaper, the Dispatch, was founded in 1973, it was based on the ideas of integrity & proper journalism and these ideals have been symbolized in the 15 years since then. However, 1988 was more than just a _____ anniversary, it was also a milestone year because it was the greatest year for the paper of the students, faculty, and community, who expect and deserve a high quality publication.

The five editors of the Dispatch (Adam J. Shapiro, Joshua Botkin, Liz Krayner, Heather Lemonedes, Sophie Courtemanche) all worked extremely hard to produce this respected product. The Dispatch expanded in '88, both in quantity as well as quality. Most issues had 16 or more pages, and each had an article or photo essay pertinent to Huntington High. Everything worth noting was covered, from Homecoming to Play-festival to the Student Government elections. We asked questions and provoked answers from students and faculty alike. The Dispatch entertained, with an interesting, witty staff that never was without an opinion or observation. Noel Honig helped the paper out with layout made each page attractive as well as interesting. And the special sections, like the "Long Islander's Guide to New York City", were superb and almost papers in themselves!

In 1988, the Dispatch editors realized the paper's importance as a vital news organ in Huntington High School and took on that responsibility fearlessly. The results speak for themselves.

Each school year the guidance department of Huntington High School invites hundreds of colleges and universities to visit our school. This gives each student the opportunity to gather information about many different schools by speaking with college representatives. You may speak with these college reps at small group meetings, or at mini-college day, held four times a year.

Use these opportunities wisely to learn about the colleges and to learn about yourself.

- know the admission requirements
- learn about the programs and characteristics of the college
- determine your strengths academically and in extra-curricular activity

As the counselors circulate during a Mini-college Day Program, we encourage the students to ask lots of informal questions.

What information about me is evaluated for admissions?

When should I apply?

What additional information should I supply?

Should I select a major right away?

Is there remedial help available?

Is there on-campus housing?

What are the dorms like?

What campus organizations are available for me to participate?

What type of social activities take place?

An informed student will make a better choice!

Etcetera is Huntington High School's art and literary magazine. Put out by a small group of students, the magazine includes the poems, short stories, and artwork that many members of the student body submit to be judged by Etcetera's discriminating staff. The pieces that are accepted are then published in an annual printing of the magazine which is distributed throughout the school in mid-spring.

The Honor Society is a club that promotes character, leadership, service, and citizenship. To be inducted into the Honor Society one must display all these characteristics and also be willing to dedicate time to help our community. The various activities that Honor Society participates in prove that it is more than just an honorary organization.

We began the year helping as ushers for parents' night. Our next activity was the March of Dimes phonathon. Our members spent 6 hours on phones asking people for donations. Another activity we participated in was the Easter Seal Milk Run. Our members spent a Saturday morning helping to make the race a great success. Some of our members passed out cups of water to the runners, some used megaphones to inform the runners of their times, and two of our members even dressed up as cows!! Soon after a few Honor Society members acted as ushers for an AP conference held at our school.

Our most successful activity this year was the Thanksgiving Day Food Drive. We collected food for the less fortunate people in Huntington so they could enjoy a Thanksgiving dinner. Our next activity was an alumni party. For the first time we invited past members of the Honor Society to talk about their college experiences. It was an enjoyable evening for all and we hope to make this an annual event. The Honor Society has two volleyball marathons. One in January and one in the spring to raise money for the James Loebell Scholarship. An ongoing project throughout the year is our tutoring service. Every member of the Honor Society is involved in this.

All in all the main thrust of the Honor Society is to provide service. We feel that we succeed in providing service to both our school and our community.

MATHLETES 10-12

Mathletes is a club which gives students who are interested in math an opportunity to learn how to solve challenging math problems. A mathlete must be able to reason through a problem to decide how to tackle it properly, then use his or her knowledge of math to solve the problem.

Mathletes is comprised of an "A" team that is highly competitive, a "B" team that is fairly competitive, and a "C" team that is not competitive. Therefore, even if a student is not an outstanding math student but still enjoys solving math problems there is a place for him or her in Mathletes.

The team competes in five county competitions with other schools such as Cold Spring Harbor and Walt Whitman. There are also five state competitions.

Advisors — Mr. B. Waldner

Two teams of ninth grade Mathletes competed in 4 state meets and 5 county meets, in which contestants are given thought-provoking math questions to answer in a specified time. The team members are Joseph D'Aguzzo, Anne Gabriel, Michael Geller, Katherine Poller, Brandon Prior, Carolyn Uglialoro and Laura Yens.

Y.A.C. is the Huntington High School chapter of a national organization dedicated to improving school cafeterias, school lunch programs and nutritional awareness.

Last year Y.A.C. sponsored Hawaiian Day to improve the atmosphere in the cafeteria. Y.A.C. members decorated the cafeteria. Then, they purchased and distributed leis to all of the students.

The organization also sponsored Sundae Day to help promote the school lunch program. This involved giving free sundaes to any student who purchased a school lunch.

This year Y.A.C. is planning some special events to celebrate the holidays. They are also considering a Deli Day sometime in the spring.

Y.A.C. also acts as the liaison between the students and the food service director. It conveys the needs of the students and the administration and proposes changes suggested by the students. This year Y.A.C. has discussed the addition of a snack only line in the cafeteria. This proposal will benefit all students by cutting down the waiting on line. This will be particularly beneficial to the lunch/choir group since they would be able to purchase a snack quickly and also have time to eat it in the cafeteria and still get to music on time.

Our meeting schedule is still tentative at this point. Our next meeting will probably be Monday evening, November 2, at 7:30 in the cafeteria.

You can see me periods 4, 5, 6, 7 in the cafeteria A or periods 1 & 2 at the nurses office and I can confirm this.

"Out with the old, in with the new," was DECA's motto this past year. This year brought us a new advisor, Mrs. Leslie Mitek. With her help and guidance we have begun to transform DECA into the successful club it once was.

DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America) is a business club whose members compete throughout the year in business-associated contests against other DECA clubs in New York. Membership is open to anyone enrolled in a business course here in school. There are also DECA scholarships available from many colleges.

We started off with our first meeting in September and were thrilled with the large turnout. We had 71 members this year. Fundraisers were planned and we had many successful bake sales. Two major fundraisers were run:

- 1) The sale of the Huntington Blue Devil Keychains
- 2) Date-Match Survey

Both of these fundraisers were exceptionally successful.

On January 13, 1988, 24 members participated at the Regional competition at Suffolk Community College. We brought home 13 trophies and 2 Honorable Mentions. We then went to Niagara Falls in March and competed on a State Level.

This year has been one of the best for DECA and we hope it will be even better in the years to come.

The beginning of the Band Year started during the summer. All the hard work resulted in perfection for the members of Band. This 1987 year was especially brilliant. Patterns were created on the football field to flow with the rhythms of each song. This year the performances were spectacular and the Band earned the title of "Long Island Champs".

When the weather chills, the Band moves inside. Field shows are eliminated. This allows students to concentrate and participate in a wide variety of high level music. On the night of the performance, the band members, arrayed in long gowns and tailored jackets, present themselves with much decorum. The audience, composed of many proud parents, greet the performers with thunderous applause.

"T.O.B. ATLANTIC COA

The Concert is later embellished by a select group called the Wind Ensemble. These students have a great dedication to music, they study and practice after school.

The Band Director, Ms. Shoemaker, and Assistant Director, Mr. Giordano, have explored, discovered, and extracted the musical talents of each individual.

The officers, who have helped carry the load, are as follows: President — Wendy Roelle, Vice President — Lisa Garnier, Secretaries — Liz Nitabach and Beth Rocchio, Historian — Lisa Giani, Band Managers — Bob Delacruz and Vicky Voketaitis, Field Major — Sunthar Anandarajah, Assistants — Lisa Mastroianni and Desiree Segui, Color Guard Captains and Lieutenants — Tiffany Quarry, Jennifer Shea, Jean Szigethy, and Stephanie Harris.

This year's orchestra may be considered to be one of the finest orchestras in the history of Huntington High School. Under the direction of Mr. Thomas Karolyi, the group meets five periods a week plus an extra period for individual lessons. Through devotion and hard work the orchestra prepares for its yearly concerts. We perform at the Winter Holiday concert, the Spring concert, and our annual Orchestral Showcase Concert. All of the orchestra students in the district participate in the grand event.

The high school orchestra is made up of approximately 80 members. In addition to playing, the orchestra also sponsors musical groups from outside the high school. These groups are invited to the high school to perform for the student body. This year's event was a master class given by the world famous pianist, Ivan Moravec.

The Huntington High School CHAMBER ENSEMBLE has approximately 16 members and is made up of the most advanced string players in the orchestra. This group rehearses once a week at night. The group has performed for a number of charities and civic functions. A good number of our members have the distinction of representing our community in the finest youth orchestras and festivals on the county and state level.

Chamber Ensemble

The Boy's Select Choir and the Girl's Select Choir are special clubs indeed. Only the best and most enthusiastic singers are chosen from the General Choir to perform at the Winter and Spring concerts, plus various other benefits throughout the year. These two choirs, under the direction of Mr. Andrew Housholder, meet every Monday night.

Wind Ensemble

The Wind Ensemble is a select group of approximately 50 people chosen mainly by audition from the Huntington High School Band. It performs at school functions such as the Honor Society Inductions, holiday concerts, and the NYSSMA festivals. Rehearsals for this elite group are Thursday nights, 4 to 9.

Last year we embarked on a project that was classified as "impossible" and "unachievable." We wanted to bring crippled Amerasian boy (mother — Vietnamese, father — American serviceman) to America. He was a beggar in Hanoi and lived a life of fear and poverty. We wanted to give him a little of what we had. In about ten weeks of getting petitions, we had over 27,000 from 27 states and three countries. With the assistance of Representative Robert Mrazek, Congress and Vietnam began to talk. (Both countries did not communicate for over 14 months prior to our project). Many said that a bunch of high school kids could not make a difference; but we did! The Amerasian boy, LeVanMinh, now lives a fulfilling life in Centerport with a little of what we have — our health and peace.

This year we have embarked on a project that will not attract the media as the LeVanMinh project did, nor will it face Congress. This year we plan to sponsor two guide dogs for the blind. Even though this project will not be publicized nationally, the importance is still the same because these guide dogs will ultimately become the "eyes" for the blind.

The Guide Dog Foundation For The Blind, Inc., in Smithtown, runs this program. We need $6,000 to sponsor two puppies ($3,000 each). When we achieve this goal, the puppies will be trained and in the end help the blind reach places once foreseen as impossible.

This project's goal can be achieved, but only with the help of our community and its residents. Most of us take our sight for granted. Unfortunately, this is true. That is why we must remind ourselves how fortunate and grateful we are to God to have two perfect eyes to open each morning and shut each night. We hope you understand the true importance and meaning of the project. Please feel free to call and discuss our project further at 673-2003.

Even during the summer, Student Government was working on projects and ideas for the upcoming school year. Our goals were to not only improve the conditions of the school, but to make a difference in the Huntington community as well.

The year started off with a bang when, what has been called one of the best Homecomings ever, overwhelmed everyone with the feeling of school spirit. It seemed everyone was cheering for the Devil's at the big game and the dance was nothing less than spectacular. Homecoming 1987 will be an event very hard to forget.

The 1987-88 year also saw plans for more dancers, recognition assemblies for all athletic sports seasons, a Spring Carnival, Battle of the Bands, and many other events that would add spice to the sometimes monotonous school year.

Perhaps one of the greatest accomplishments of the Student Government this year, concerning domestic improvements, had to be the establishment of the Student Staff Advisory Council. A much needed liaison between the School Board and the various groups at Huntington High School. This council includes students, teachers, cafeteria workers, custodial staff, monitors, secretaries, hallway assistants, instructional aides, and members of the administration. Its goal is to improve the human relations and communication within the high school and suggest improvements for school life.

However, the most memorable occurrence of the 1987-88 year was the contribution of the student body in the area of community service. It seemed that there were always projects going on. Whether it was the Guide Dog project, the Latin Cultural Center, Grandfriends, tapes for the blind, or any other project, everyone involved must be highly commended because although the Student Government may have set up the projects, it was the members of the student body who made them run successfully. It was the students who made this year's blood drive and the Honor Society's food drive among the most successful in school history.

When one looks back on the 1987-88 year, it should be remembered that the Student Government did not just work to make improvements in the school, but organized the student body to make outstanding contributions to the Huntington community as a whole.

Friday, February 12, 1988 was this years Annual Carnation Day at Huntington High School. The co-chairpeople Nicole Rosen and Jennifer Shea supervised the distribution of 3500 carnations. For each different color carnation there was a special meaning. If you wanted to show your friends that you care you could have sent a yellow flower. If there was someone you wanted to get to know better, there was white. If your feelings ran a little deeper you could have sent red for love. We thank all the people who helped sell and deliver the carnations. We hope that next year and in all years to come there will be one successful Carnation Day after another.

Varsity Football Season — 1987

The cheerleaders started off 1987 with a new coach, Theresa Muhr. Under her advising, the group held many fundraisers such as bake sales, etc. The cheerleaders also displayed their spirit by participating in the Homecoming parade and the pep rally. They also showed their support for the winning football team by decorating the locker room. They also showed their support for the winning football team by decorating the locker room with signs and candy and braving the cold weather during the playoff games. Overall, it was a great season for not only the football team, but the cheerleaders as well!

From football season, the cheerleaders went almost directly into basketball season. Everyone who was on the varsity squad had been a cheerleader before, so it was a little easier to get the squad started. The cheerleaders started what they called a "big brother" system. Each cheerleader was assigned a basketball player and for the rest of the season, the cheerleaders left candy, etc. in their big brothers' lockers before specific games. The squad was always busy, with practices three days a week and games in between.

The Huntington High School General Choir, under the direction of Mr. Andrew Housholder, is made up of talented students from all grade levels, many of which are also in the orchestra and band. In their choir classes, the students learn how to read and make music of such composers as John Rutter, Antonio Vivaldi, and Gabriel Faure. Mr. Household-er teaches his students a large variety of styles of singing and demands a lot of hard work. The effort of the students and teacher to produce a professional sounding choir is apparent in the winter and spring concerts given each year.

H.H.S. Choir

This has been a banner year for the A.F.S. Membership has grown substantially and under the leadership of Ann Marie Cruz (Pres.), Elisa Weidenbaum (V.P.), Carol Zillman (Sec.), Sophie Courtemanche (Treas.), and Jennifer Stevens (Publicity), the club increased its fundraising activity, and public service involvement as well as making friends around the country and around the world.

The year started with the annual Pizza Sale, which benefitted the Americans Abroad Scholarship Fund. Summer program returnees Sarah Taylor, Munish Rametra, Lori Bracey, Sophie Courtemanche, Louis Fiore and Carl Pezold spent time speaking to English classes about their experiences in foreign lands last summer. The short term exchange to Arlington, Texas was a great success. (Although Miss Moon, the chaperone, stated no one should have to be a mother to thirteen teenagers at once.) Our Texas friends visited H.H.S. in March, and surely, many lasting relationships were formed.

In December, A.F.S. sponsored Huntington's own America Remembers Campaign and over four hundred letters were mailed to service men and women away from home during the holidays. Caroling at Huntington Hospital right before Christmas was another A.F.S. endeavor.

While 87-88 was a great year, the A.F.S. looks to 88-89 to be even better.

THE HUNTINGTON HIGH SCHOOL DRAMA COMPANY PRESENTS

A Murder is Announced

PERFORMANCES ON NOVEMBER 20th & 21st, 1987
AT THE HUNTINGTON HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM 8 P.M.
ADULTS - $4.00 STUDENTS & SENIOR CITIZENS - $3.00 FOR INFORMATION CALL 673-2099

The 1987-88 Drama Company got off to a "mysterious" start with its production of Agatha Christie's "A Murder Is Announced". With this memorable performance came great ensemble work, along with a few "pregnant pauses."

Next in line, the Drama Company continued its tradition of sponsoring the annual Playfestival. Terrific performances were given by all four classes. Heather Weiller and Jean Moon worked together in the orchestration of the Playfestival. Jean Moon eventually took over to direct the Spring Production, "The Pajama Game."

This year was very successful and a real blast for the Drama Company.

The Bonsai Club of Huntington High School is a new club dedicated to the art of miniature trees and shrubs into pleasing artistic and aesthetic styles. Thanks to Mr. Kurtz, Principal Mary Lou Griffin and Mr. Salvatore, the year was a successful one. A guest speaker spoke to the club and demonstrated the basics of the art, and a rotating display of the students work promoted this unique and exciting activity. We are very pleased with our efforts and hope that even more students will join us next year.

Brainstormers is a College Bowl type competition sponsored by WLIW channel 21. This is the first year Huntington has participated in this academic trivia competition. It has been a very successful first season. Team members, selected by tryouts, are captain Josh Botkin, Dan Killelea, Yuri Burtsch, and alternate Ellen Endrizzi. Mr. Waldner is the advisor for the team.

SADD — Students Against Driving Drunk

The purpose of the SADD Program is to organize students to combat one of the major killers of their age group — drinking and driving. SADD educates students concerning the problem of drinking and driving and helps each student? become aware of the alcohol problem as it exists in their community and on a state and national level. Huntington High School Sadd chapter activities have included ongoing educational assembly programs for students, drug and alcohol free after-prom parties, distribution of the SADD contract and dramatic presentations performed at our elementary schools. SADD is open and warmly welcomes all students and faculty to participate.

Blood Drive 1987-1988

As we approach the closing of my final year at H.H.S. I can fondly look back at the many successful Blood Drives I have partaken in. This last November Dina Boccio and I were able to recruit over 125 potential donors, 100 of which were eligible to donate. This spring (March 22) another even more successful drive will be held and thanks to the concerted efforts of the entire Blood Drive committee it will also be the most memorable one. Many thanks to the loyal donors as well as to all those students who spent their free time to ensure the successful completion of the drives. Happy graduation '88. — Jen Boyd

The Huntington High School Key Club is a community organization. The club consists of about 280 members who have participated in many community service projects since the beginning of the year.

The officers started off their year way back in July of 1987 when they, along with Mr. Cusumano, attended the 44th Annual Key Club International Convention in Toronto, Canada. There, the officers participated in a dance marathon which raised money to buy a van for the Meals on Wheels program.

The first thing that the Key Club participated in after school began was an auction held by the Huntington Historical Society. About ten members attended to help move furniture which would be auctioned off.

Their next project was one of the biggest of the year. On November 7th, the Club held a twelve-hour marathon from 5 p.m. until 5 a.m. to raise money for Juvenile Diabetes. The students each collected pledges and donations which in turn, combined to make approximately $4500 to go to the foundation.

The Key Club also participated in the Toys for Tots Program sponsored by the Family Service League. The club divided its members into different groups. Each group put in their own money in order to buy one present for a child. The members also donated their own second hand toys to give to children who had no presents for them under the Christmas trees.

A few weeks before Christmas the Key Club helped the Kiwanis Club take needy children shopping at Sears. Each member was assigned to one child and $100 to buy clothing and a toy for the child.

The most recent activity that the Key Club took part in was the opening of the new homeless shelter in Huntington Station. Several members helped move furniture into the home.

The club also held their second annual Hawaiian Luau in the spring. From 8 p.m. — 12 p.m. the members danced to the music of a D.J. and the ever faithful "Still". They dressed in their Hawaiian attire and held a limbo contest, and a "hot legs contest". The money raised from the ticket sales went towards research for the Spinal Cord Foundation.

The Latin Culture Club is made up of a group of students who are helping the Youth Development Association. Originally, they were supposed to work with the Latin Culture Center only, but they soon found that it was more efficient for this center to cooperate with the Youth Development Association.

The club is divided into five different committees: tutoring, answering phones, donations, filing and parties and food. Thirty Huntington High Students have joined one or more of these committees, each of which has its own particular function.

The tutoring committee helps Huntington High students and younger children with their schoolwork. The volunteers are also teaching Hispanic youngsters how to speak English and to do math problems.

The students answering phones work closely with the students who file. They are mostly bi-lingual, and they talk to people who call the Youth Development Association looking for help. Many people who call are hungry or in need of a place to live, and the students on these two committees take down their names and addresses for the Latin Culture Center Manager. All this information is filed at the center and is kept confidential.

The donations' committee collects gratuities from the merchants in the community who are willing to lend a hand. The students go to these merchants armed with a letter from the Youth Development Association that explains our necessities. For example, a restaurant may donate a free dinner for two, and the YDA can take this contribution and make a raffle out of it.

The money obtained from this raffle would go to people who need food, clothing, etc.

The last committee is in charge of all the parties that are held at the Youth Development Association. These parties are usually held to raise money for the holidays. This money is then taken to buy gifts for poor families. The students on this committee help decorate and prepare food for the parties. Projects held at the YDA this past year were a Halloween Dance, for which Paco Palacios was the DJ, and a Halloween Party. There was also a Christmas party for which club members dressed-up as elves and "Santa's Helpers" and handed-out 250 gifts to over 100 children.

The Latin Culture Club is advised by Ms. Barbara Corsa with the help of chairpersons Paco Palacios and Cynthia Mercado.

The Jazz ensemble is an extension of the high school band. The ensemble is divided into two groups based on grade. One group is composed of ninth and tenth graders and the other is composed of eleventh and twelfth graders. The groups play a variety of styles of music, including Latin, Rock and Swing. The groups meet on Tuesday nights. They take great pride in the music they play, and enjoy creating music for the listening pleasures of others.

Although the Youth Ending Hunger club was started just last year, it has accomplished a great deal in a small amount of time. The main purpose of the club is to inform others of the serious problems of hunger and the homeless that exist in Huntington as well as throughout our country and the world. This year the club has worked with the Honor Society on the Thanksgiving food drive, raised money for Newsday's Adopt-a-Family, and raised money for the Helping Hand Rescue Mission.

"I really want to design my clothes not just buy them." "I can fix anything, not just lawn mowers." The independence and competence expressed by these students is the hallmark of Wilson Tech. Many of our students, eager to do while they learn have found their dreams can be realized in occupational courses that range from Advertising Art to Welding. While going to classes at these schools they remain a lively segment of our student body by maintaining their academic classes here.

Let me tell you right off the bat, that this is the second article that was written to fill this space. The first one was written by my pal Elan Cole, and while it was funny and interesting, it was unfunny and uninteresting. Mrs. Carrizzo, who edits all of the articles that go into this Yearbook, wrote a few comments on the bottom of his article, a few of which I'd like to share with you. Mrs. Carrizzo told Elan to talk to the students of the High School, and "give them something exciting to look forward to so they can anticipate a yearbook that took hours and hours of blood, sweat and tears to complete."

Well, I don't know about tears, but certainly I myself sweated and bled for this yearbook. For example, this is the twenty third page of yearbook copy that I have typed today. And by no means am I the only one who worked hard for this publication. All the editors, and lots of the staff members spent sleepless nights, sleepless days, and even sleepless afternoons rallying around one idea alone: making our deadlines. Copy has to be written, photos taken, layouts done, finances arranged, and much more.

Here's why I think that the staff of this Yearbook is so good. They are hard workers, with a never-call-it-quits attitude, and a sense of dedication.

But, you might say, that's true of many people in the High School. Precisely. That's why we chose to profile those special people of our school. As Elan Cole put it, "Many people go their whole lives without being recognized for what they accomplish, and many people that we don't hear about do some things that indeed deserve recognition. Here we have musicians, writers, artists and athletes . . ."

Well, what more can I say on the subject of the yearbook staff? I can't truly say that it has been that much of a thrill doing it, but I know that it will certainly be a thrill to read when it is all said and done. As my personal hero, Jack Kerouac, once said, "Walking on water wasn't built in a day." Well, Jack, neither was this yearbook.

CHRIS CUSUMANO

You can really tell that Chris Cusumano loves what he is doing and the people he is working with, in a number of ways. As advisor of the Key Club at his meetings he sometimes has to keep as many as 200 students quiet so they can hear everything that is going on. Now after dealing with students all day, then to come back at night to preside over a meeting, shows Mr. Cusumano's feelings for the students. When he first started working in Huntington High School he moved to Huntington, just so he could really understand what the community is like.

Before Mr. Cusumano was teaching English he had been teaching, Spanish for seventeen years. Then in 1982 he went back to school to receive a masters degree in English. Now he is in the position which he enjoys the most. Teaching humanities gives him a chance not only to explore much of the subjects and works they study, but also to teach others to understand the arts. Chris Cusumano is a lover of the arts. A lover of the arts is someone who admires all aspects of the different arts, ranging from novels to poems to paintings.

On his free time Chris Cusumano is the director and organist for the United States Merchant Marine Academy (USMMA), in Kings Point. He also tries to read as much as possible. He enjoys subjects like Architecture and English History. These subjects have risen interest in him mainly because of their limitless in history.

Mr. Cusumano feels that the school does not get enough positive publicity. Instead it seems Huntington High is all too often plagued by rumors which are not true. "Huntington is a darn good school, and we should let the public know about the good things" he feels. All in all Mr. Cusumano is a people person and one heck of a friendly guy.

GLORIA BLAUVELT

Last year one lady got alot of well deserved recognition on a project she had brought forth to our Student Government. Mrs. Gloria Blauvelt was the one first introduced us all to the project of bringing Minh Le Van to this country. Though it seems last year was the one in which she got the most media press coverage, her entire life has been exciting and filled with lots of great warm memories.

Gloria Blauvelt was born in Burlington, Vermont. When she was four years old she moved to Long Island. She then entered the Huntington school district and followed it all the way to the old high school on Main Street. All through her four years she was a super involved student. She played basketball, field hockey, tennis on the varsity level for all four years. She also played the violin, sang in the chorus and was in many of the plays and other musicals that the drama company presented. The list goes on to make her editor of the yearbook. As a cheerleader she was given the opportunity to meet her future husband, Robert Blauvelt. After graduation, in 1940 she went to a secretarial school which was a little less than she had desired in a school, however it gave her the qualifications to hold a number of jobs as a secretary. In 1943 she married her high school boy friend who was now serving a four year term in Marine Air Corps. In 1951 she gave birth to her son Robert and then in 1954 her daughter Nancy arrived. When her kids were in high school during the mid-sixties to early seventies the school was going through many changes. The war in Vietnam and many civil rights issues were opposed strongly by many students. Many would have demonstrations. Because of the unrest, Mrs.

Blauvelt saw the need for more communication between the students and administration. So she was given a job as communicator between the two groups. Not only was she always there for the student body when they needed her, but she also went out her way. She would follow all the sports teams and edited a newsletter for all sports.

During this time, Mrs B. was able to do what she loves the most, work with kids. She feels that working with kids on the high school level has given her a lifetime of memories. This spring, Mrs. Blauvelt is considering retiring and moving to Conneticut. If so we will all miss Mrs. B and wish her the best of luck.

Paint is Moore than a cover-up

Paint is... you know, Aboff's...
It's texture... color... nuance...
it's Aboff's and Benjamin Moore.
It's the critical differences that separate the job that's nearly complete from the one that is completely wonderful!

At Aboff's we bring attention to such details as the right colors... look, we'll guide you through a Rainbow:

Red — The longest wave length and the fastest moving color — it catches the eye!

Orange — The earth color — it is cheerful and extroverted!

Aboff's

Green — The color of life! The most restful color to the eyes!

Blue — The color of the sky and the ocean. It's "lofty" and reflects a sense of infinity.

Violet — A color both subtle and stormy. It indicates a rare depth of feeling.

And the range of emotions and feelings which the right colors will convey are viable only when you use top quality coatings from Benjamin Moore and Aboff's... and nothing less!
